Airline Asks for Probe

BLOSSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The president of Mohawk Airlines has asked FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to investigate a "strong suggestion of sabotage" in the crash of a jetliner Friday that killed 34 persons near here.

In a telegram to Hoover Friday night, Robert E. Peach, Mohawk president, said "evidence has developed in course of notification of next of kin of crash victims which leads to strong suggestion of sabotage."

He did not give any details of the evidence.

In Washington, the FBI said it had no determination of the cause of the accident and no evidence of sabotage which would justify its entering the investigation as yet. FBI experts were on the scene to help identify the victims and were keeping in touch with local and federal aviation authorities, a spokesman said.

The plane — a BAC111 on Flight 40 bound from Syracuse, N.Y., to Washington, D.C. — plunged in a ball of flames onto Blossburg Mountain in north-central Pennsylvania at 2:50 p.m., shortly after it took off in overcast from Elmira, N.Y.

Investigators from several federal agencies, local authorities and state police met this morning to coordinate their investigations, which one spokesman said probably would take a week to 10 days.

Witnesses said the wreckage was scattered over a wide area and that nearly all the bodies were mutilated and dismembered.

"I was in World War II and I never saw anything like that," said Raymond Smith, 48, who visited the scene.

Before Peach sent his telegram, a Mohawk spokesman said the FBI was routinely investigating any possibility of sabotage. FBI agents also were sent to the scene to help identify victims, and the National Transportation Safety Board, a newly established unit in the Department of Transportation, sent investigators.

Former Maine Gov. John H. Reed, a member of the board, said Friday night the airplane's flight recorder tape had been found, intact and would be sent to Washington for analysis.

He said investigators had heard reports of a bomb but that there was "no evidence to that effect, which has come to our attention at this moment."

Residents of Blossburg, a town of 1,956, about 30 miles south of Corning, N.Y., said they could tell the airliner was in trouble as it flew over.

"It sounded like the engine kept cutting out," one man said.

Blossburg postmaster Louis Schultz said he saw the plane's left wing on fire and pieces of debris falling off.

"It was making a noise like a whistle," he said. "It was just like a toy going down — going down sideways."

Schultz later visited the crash scene and said the fuselage was gone, "just as if someone had stuck some dynamite in the center and blew it to pieces."

Witnesses said the plane came down on a flat area of the mountain top.

A temporary morgue was established in the Blossburg fire hall, but some observers said identification would be an "almost impossible job." In addition to the FBI crew, pathologists and dentists were called to aid in identification.

The pilot was identified as Capt. Charles Bullock, 44, of Cazenovia, N.Y., who had been with Mohawk nearly 15 years.

HOLDING A CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL has been presented posthumously to James R. Layne, for rescuing Richard Hockersmith, six, from drowning July 4. Layne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne of Diehlstadt hold the award.

Laynes Receive Hero Medal

BY LEO SCHADE

DIEHLSTADT -- Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne rural route, have received a Carnegie hero medal awarded posthumously to their son, James Randolph Layne, 17, who drowned after he pulled six-year - old Richard Hockersmith of East Prairie to safety.

The rescue followed a boating accident on chute seven at Dorena in the Mississippi River July 4.

The medal, four inches in diameter, encased in a two - inch transparent case, is inscribed:

"James Randolph Layne, who died helping to save Richard L. Hockersmith from drowning, Dorena. Mo., July 4, 1966."

Surrounding the inscription is the verse:

"Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The front side of the bronze mounted trophy is a picture of Andrew Carnegie, founder of the Hero Fund, established in 1906.

The Laynes previously received a $500 scholarship fund last month. This has been placed with funds for their daughter, Vicki, 13.

A Carnegie Medal also was given to Miss Marie Sorrells, 18, Owosso, Mich., a girl companion of James Layne, who brought Hockersmith to shore after young Layne initiated the rescue effort. She also received a $500 scholarship fund.

The Layne family received a copy of Missouri House resolution 174, commemorating the bravery of Layne.

The official presentation of the medal will be made to the family by the Kiwanis club of Charleston, which reported the rescue to the Carnegie Hero Fund.

Young Layne was a junior at Charleston high school and was an expert mechanic. He and Miss Sorrels had gone to the river to swim. After arrival, a small boat carrying Emro Hockersmith and three of his children, sank. They were going to an island for a picnic.

The father brought daughter, Susan, five and son, James, eight, to safety.

Richard Hockersmith, seven, became separated from the family and was unable to swim. Layne rescued the boy in 18 feet of water bringing him safely to more shallow depths.

Twenty or more adults and children were on the shore.

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)— One person died and at least 14 were hospitalized as a tornado slashed through Garden City and its farm area Friday night.

Civil Defense headquarters said 125 homes sustained major damage, and several hundred others had lesser damage. The survey was made for Civil Defense by Richard Rohleder, assistant police chief.

The storm moved from west to east across the north part of the city.

Mrs. Mamie Largent, 66, died in St. Catherine's hospital about 30 minutes after she was brought in from her farm home three miles northeast of town where she was caught by the twister.

Hospital attendants said one woman suffered a broken hip and at least two had broken arms. Most were treated for shock and minor injuries. Many received first-aid from rescue workers.

Among those taken to the hospital were a number of patients of the Briar Hill nursing home, which was damaged.

Victims left homeless were given shelter in the Methodist Church and the National Guard armory.

A new grade school in the northeast section, which is to be opened in the fall, lost its gym roof. Another grade school had a pole rammed through the west side of the building, and an annex—a steel structure — was demolished.

The high school stadium's press box was ripped away.

The office of Gov. Robert Docking in Topeka said it had sent Robert C. Harder, director of the state's technical assistance program, to Garden City to help with rehabilitation. National Guard units also were being alerted to help in the stricken area, the governor's office said.

Most of the heavy damage to homes occurred in the Briar Hill area in the northeast residential area.

Garden City has a population of about 14,000. It is located in the southwest part of the state, about 65 miles from the Colorado and Oklahoma lines.

Weather instruments at radio station KIUL measured the winds at 62 miles an hour. Power lines were down and telephone service disrupted. Many downtown store fronts were shattered and heavy tree damage was reported. The highway patrol's radio system was knocked out.

There had been some wind from the north and the air was brown with dust just before 9 p.m., but skies in the west were clear. About 8:55 p.m. there was a sprinkle of rain.

"There was a little whirlwind and then everything started blowing," said Kim Wells, a newsman for KIUL.

Bill Brown, editor of the Garden City Telegram, said he was attending a concert in Stevens Park near the downtown area. As the storm brewed, he dashed for his home in the northeast part of town.

"I just reached the house when my wife yelled for me to head for the basement," Brown said. "We crawled under a pool table...just then the roof gave in."

Brown, his wife, Lois, and 14-year-old daughter, Kathy, were uninjured. A son, David, 16, was not at home but was in no danger, Brown said.

"There wasn't much rain, a little hail," Brown said. "I thought it was all over and started to leave when it seemed to hit again. A beam fell down and I went back to the pool table."

Andy Erhart, superintendent of the Garden City Experiment Station, about two miles northeast of the city, said all the farm's outbuildings were lost. He and Mrs. Erhart and their 15-year-old son, Dana, were in the basement. Part of their home's roof and the windows were destroyed.

"We were lucky," Erhart said.

The Dodge City weather bureau said a number of funnel clouds were reported as the storm system moved east. None except the one at Garden City apparently touched down, the bureau said.

Visitor Loses TravelersChecks

Geraldine Henley, Brookport, Ill., reported to the police that she had lost her purse enroute from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to the Holiday Inn here.

The purse contained $150 in travelers checks and identification cards.

More Rain Falls On Flood Areas

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Heavy rains hit Eastern Kansas and Western and Central Missouri today, posing more troubles for those battling flood waters on the Missouri River and its tributaries.

Some of the rains along the Missouri tributaries were over an inch, the south part of Kansas City reporting 1.24.

Army Engineer workers, volunteers and convicts from the Missouri penitentiary still were battling to keep the levees intact along the Big Muddy. Already 21l private levees from Rulo, Neb., to the Mississippi have been reached.

Army Unit Ambushed

SAIGON (AP) — An American infantry company on a search-and-destroy mission was caught in a deadly crossfire of North Vietnamese automatic weapons and small arms and lost 76 killed and 24 wounded high in the central highlands, the U.S. Command disclosed today.

The bloody action near Dak To, 270 miles north of Saigon, took place Thursday, the command said, but the news was held up for "security reasons."

The badly mauled company of perhaps 150 men was part of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, the first Army combat unit to arrive in Vietnam, in May 1965. The company included many newcomers sent in as replacements for men rotated out of South Vietnam. It had been looking for the enemy since last Sunday but had had no contact until the surprise Red assault Thursday.

Shot Fired In Sunset

Police were called to Sunset addition early today, when Jerry D. Jackson, 306 Sunset Drive, informed them that a shot from a .22 caliber rifle had been fired by George D. Robertson.

The two had argued. Jackson and a woman friend were walking between Felker and Petty streets when the shot was fired. Jackson claimed the bullet came close enough to tear his clothing and burned his skin.

No charges were filed.

Legal Fees in Poverty Battle Run to $1,700

PORTAGEVILLE - The recent power struggle within the War on Poverty in Southeast Missouri might not have only been costly in the long range possibility of losing future OEO programs--it cost $1,700 for DAEOC to conduct its battle.

Information leaked out of the DAEOC organization this week that attorney fees in the move to dismiss Lloyd Phillips and William Graves came to about $1,700.

The "bill" from Don Dickerson, a Cape Girardeau attorney, was received recently in the Portageville office. His legal fees and expenses came to the $1,700.

Dickerson was "hired" by members of the DAEOC organization in March shortly after the struggle for control of the poverty program was renewed. During the conflict one of his first pieces of legal advice involved the seating of a delegation from Pemiscot County who had been challenged.

As the controversy grew over the dismissal of Phillips and Graves, Dickerson was repeatedly called on for "legal advice" in regard to the position of these two men.

The Cape Girardeau lawyer was also retained to represent DAEOC in the controversy with the regional headquarters of the Office of Economic Opportunity in Kansas City.

On numerous occasions Dickerson's advice was referred to in DAEOC minutes and statements sent out by the DAEOC office in Portageville.

It was brought out this week, after the word of Dickerson's fees had leaked out, that OEO regulations allow only $50 per day for consultant's fees and does not allow any special fee for an attorney. Consultants are normally hired on a "contract" basis, though written contracts are not routine. If paid as a consultant this would mean 34 days service by the lawyer.

OEO policy also requires documentation for expenditures in the form of consultants fees. It was reported that such documentation was being prepared last week.

The new executive director of DAEOC, A. W. Wright, said Wednesday that to the best of his knowledge the lawyer's fees, in round numbers, came to about $1,600.

He said they were all documented by Dickerson, with each figure being explained in the bill.

Wright, without referring to problems of the past within DAEOC, said things appear to be smoothing out and that DAEOC needs and he hopes will get the help of the press, the public and these people working within the program.

He also stated that the organization hopes to launch an information program to keep the public informed of what DAEOC is doing. Not being critical of any past operations, Wright said he feels that keeping the public informed is one of the most important functions that must be carried out in this type of a program.

Summit Talks Produce Air Of Optimism

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — American diplomats mixed optimism with caution today over prospects that two summit meetings at Glassboro will open the way toward solving major international issues. The fact that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met for five hours Friday, including three hours with no aides except interpreters—then agreed on another parley Sunday—was in itself regarded as a good omen.

Announcement of the follow-up session Sunday afternoon came as a surprise to the array of experts who figured the Friday meeting could only be a token one at best, considering how much difficulty the chiefs had all week over whether or where to get together.

As it turned out their first session at Hollybush, the brownstone residence of the Glassboro State College president, began with a handshake and ended with Johnson and Kosygin smilingly facing newsmen and a cheering crowd.

Kosygin concurred with Johnson's statement that their talks ranged over such issues as the Middle East crisis and Vietnam and that "we agreed it is now very important to reach international agreement on a non-proliferation treaty."

Presidential press secretary George Christian said the two leaders developed an understanding on the central question in the Middle East dispute—that "Israel does, of course, exist as a nation"—although they disagreed on other points.

Christian said Johnson hopes for a consensus on the other Middle East issues. He also reported that Secretary of State Dean Rusk, assigned to meet next week with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, is optimistic about chances for U.S.-Soviet concurrence on the draft of a proposed treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons.

The two private meetings by the chiefs plus the business lunch attended by their top advisers at the tree-shaded campus site Friday produced a sudden improvement in the tone of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Since Kosygin's arrival in New York a week ago for the U.S.-opposed U.N. General Assembly special session on the Middle East, the atmosphere had soured amid his public denunciation of American as well as Israeli policy and the arguments over a summit meeting.

But after the Glassboro parley, Johnson hailed "the spirit of Hollybush." He told a Democratic group in Los Angeles that this is the spirit of "reasoning together."

Johnson declared that he and Kosygin had agreed they both want "a world of peace for our grandchildren."

But the President added a note of caution that "deep and serious differences" remain. "One meeting does not make a peace," he said.

"We reached no new agreements—that does not happen in a single conversation—but I think we understand each other better," he said.

Woman Found Unconscious

DEXTER - Bernice Malone, 40, was injured in a one-car accident when her car ran off a gravel road and into a ditch three miles south of Dexter last night.

She was taken, unconscious, to Lucy Lee hospital at Poplar Bluff, where she is reported in critical condition.

The highway patrol said she might have suffered a heart attack since damage to her car was slight. She was found by a passing motorist.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the federal government has saved the American people from themselves in establishing uniform time during the summer it should try its hand in hoisting uniform highway signs.

The signs that are placed on the nation's streets and highways were not put there by through travelers unfamiliar with the thoroughfares.

If they had been they never would have been there.

Driving through Kansas City the motorist may be following a highway number west into Kansas.

He probably won't get there the first time.

He'll come to a sign and an arrow pointing to Kansas City, Kan.

That's where he should turn but he will learn that too late.

Highway numbers while plentiful outside a city may disappear in the business section or the motorist may be in a center lane with his view obscured by a truck in an outer lane. He easily can miss a turn.

In some states it is the practice to put highway turn signs on the turn corner. Other states let the motorists get accustomed to the idea gradually. The motorist passes several intersections but he is supposed to know exactly where to turn.

He often doesn't and may find himself several miles off the route before he makes the discovery that he guessed wrong.

A whole book could be written about highways bearing the same number which bend or go in one or more different directions in a city.

Miles of travel have been wasted by motorists who thought they were going in one direction toward a destination only to find that they were traveling the same highway in the opposite direction toward another destination.

A truck parked at a curb in the business section can eliminate a turn sign for all practical purposes. So can street decorations or merchant advertising signs unless they are carefully placed with loving consideration for strangers in town.

There is no evidence to support an argument which might be made that bewildered motorists hunting for road signs cause accidents. They do create impatience in motorists who are familiar with the territory and know where they are going. They also know how to use a horn.

Others understand the problem because they, too, have experienced it and exert commendable patience and silence.

This confusion does not contribute to the emotional stability of the driver. If he is the harassed father, he'll probably blow his top before the day is over and convince his wife that he is too emotionally unstable to be around children.

Another irritation are signs pointing to the next city down the road in lieu of a highway numeral marker. These are fine for the one per cent of the travelers who are going to that particular city but they are meaningless to those who have destinations beyond and couldn't care less about what lies in between.

The federal government is doing a fine job insisting on uniformity in the sign language on interstate highways and other highways built with federal financial assistance.

But it isn't nearly enough.

Along with safer cars, better engineered roads, more efficient gasoline, better oil and longer mileage tires why can't there be road signs motorists can read and understand?

But please don't let the natives place them.

FCC's IDEA OF "FAIRNESS"

The Federal Communication Commission has ruled that under its doctrine of "fairness" antismoking messages must be aired by radio and television stations that broadcast cigarette commercials. This is an absurd extension of the equal time practice.

Its absurdity is noted by Broadcasting magazine which quotes an official of the Women's Christian Temperance Union as saying she is thinking of petitioning for the same privilege to answer wine and beer advertising.

The magazine also quotes an advertising agency official as saying: "The decision opens the door for requests from groups opposing automobiles, because they might be unsafe; food products, because they have high cholesterol counts; fluoride toothpastes, because some groups think they are harmful; sun lamps because they may cause skin cancer; and beer and wine because inebriation causes auto accidents and violence.

It could be added that proponents of gas heating for households might seek the right of free reply to the promoters of oil burners; and why shouldn't railroads and steamships seek free time to rebut the claims of airlines?

The possibility that the FCC ruling, if it is pursued, might drive millions of dollars of advertising from broadcasting into print media should be of little solace to newspapers and magazines. If the practice is upheld in broadcasting, sooner or later someone will try to apply the same reasoning to print.

There is only one simple rule that should apply to advertising in any medium: Anything that can be sold to the consumer legally should have the right to be offered to the consumer through honest and truthful advertising - Editor and Publisher

Representative George W. Parker says "Missouri's legislature suffers from lack of time, lack of help and lack of pay" to get its job done.

We disagree with the good fellow. They have plenty of time if they would stay on the job more than three days a week. They have just taken care of the pay problem with a salary of $7,200.00 for six-month's work every two years and an extra $10.00 per day if they answer the first roll call plus mileage for the trip back home. The help problem could be solved if all the help on the payroll was made to work in Jefferson City instead of not being on the job.

At least thats the way this editor sees it.

Here is a sad tale which sounds like fiction. Actually, it is a true story, repeated hundreds of times each year.

Sam Jones' sales were lagging. Then he heard of a tremendous bargain in refrigerators he could pass on to his customers.

He quickly stepped up operations to get them all on his showroom floor before morning.

Most of Sam's customers had been shopping across the street lately, and he couldn't understand why. "What does Jim Gulch have to offer them that I don't?" he asked himself.

Now he would show his customers a real bargain! Gulch would really be mad when he watched all his new customers shop across the street again. He smiled to himself in anticipated satisfaction.

The next morning Sam opened his store an hour early. His salesmen were extra sharp as they stood waiting for the crowd. And there they stood, waiting and waiting and waiting. No one entered the store.

Sam glumly stood at the door and stared across the street. Why just look at the customers in Gulch's store! How in the world did Gulch do it?

Stepping across the street, Sam tapped a man on the shoulder. "Pardon me, but what do you have in your hand?" he asked. "Why, it's a newspaper ad," the man replied. "Haven't you heard? Mr. Gulch has all the latest models at the best price; everyone knows about his sale."

Sam had learned the basic lesson of selling. No one can buy the best or cheapest mousetrap in the world until he learns where it is sold.

NEW SEA DIVER FOR NAVY

The Miami Seaquarium is training eight porpoises as sea messengers for the Navy.

Burton Clark, the Seaquarium's general manager, said recently that the porpoises were being schooled under a Navy contract for use in the Sealab 3 research project. The Seaquarium is a tourist attraction that highlights performing porpoises. It also engages in scientific ventures related to its various marine exhibits.

Mr. Clark said the porpoises were to be used as messengers between the ocean surface and an underwater research station 400 feet deep in the Pacific Ocean off Point Magu, Calif. They carry written messages clipped to a leather harness.

A male porpoise was used for courier duty in the successful Sealab 2 project. The mammal responded to buzzers sounded by scientists stationed at a 200-foot depth.

CANT SPEL?
BLAME GENES

Dr. Steven G. Vandenberg of the University of Louisville School of Medicine has examined native abilities. He found that the mental abilities most influenced by heredity are: 1. spatial visualization, the ability to picture patterns and structures in the mind; 2. word fluency, the ability to think of words and use them easily in talking or writing; 3. numerical ability.

Parents who have had trouble with arithmetic and spelling are likely to pass on that deficiency to their children, the Catholic Digest finds. On the other hand, abilities to reason and remember are not as strongly influenced by heredity, and training can improve skill. Dr. Vandenberg is cautious about the meaning of the word inherited. He says it is not so much the qualities themselves but the potentiality for developing them that is inherited.

COMPUTING OUR VOTES

It is increasingly evident that politicians are letting computers do much of their thinking for them. Fed raw materials in the form of public opinion polls, the electronic brains meditate electronically, then tell the politicos what we voters are likely to want in the way of brad and circuses and various kinds of benefits -- unemployment, medical, old age, fringe, poverty, etc.

The politicians, being politicians, go all out to oblige. Which explains such slogans as "Vote for Glutz Because Glutz Can Do More For You." Or, "Elect Glatz Because Glatz Can Get It For You."

Both parties, and some of our most celebrates individual politicians, make extensive use of computers. The Kennedys obviously have great faith in them, and the famed LBJ census is not arrived at by ouija board.

The operation is pretty impressive when you stop to think about it. Consider all the conflicting demands, from people who pay taxes and from those who want that tax money. And that's the main thing to consider, because nowadays that kind of put and take is the warp and woof of politics.

There's just one thing lacking. So far we haven't heard of any computer which takes into account certain basic principles -- such as patriotism, honesty, and love of God. Or, for that matter, the widely held belief that we have a pretty good system going here, and one that is not likely to be improved by injections of socialism or communism. Nor, so far as we know, does any computer record the fact that most of us still feel that we ought to be able to run our country without advance and consent from the international set in evidence at the UN and elsewhere.

A properly programmed computer would show that most Americans subscribe to MacArthur's dictum: "There is no substitute for victory." It would show, too, that Berkeley, New Haven, Greenwich Village and a few other noisy hot spots are not taken as seriously by Americans as they are by certain equally noisy politicians.

Someday, no doubt, a computer will be produced which can evaluate all of these things, too. Meanwhile, the politician who ignores them does so at his own risk.

And meanwhile, too, we don't like the idea of having our vote computed until we have cast it. The computer may be accurate in reporting that there are more people who want to receive largess from the treasury than want to pay taxes into the treasury. Indeed, the computer may be right every day of the year -- except election day.

HEALTH PLAN:
SOVIET STYLE

Those who advocate that Americans emulate the Soviet system of health care should be interested in the following words from the "worker's paradise".

Izvestia, the Moscow newspaper, recently reported receipt of a letter from a lady pleading, "Help me to see!" The woman had undergone a successful cataract removal, but needed special glasses.

Izvestia noted that for more than a month, "the optical production section of the Pharmaceutical Administration of the Executive Committee of the Moscow City Society of Working People's Deputies" had been reporting that the lady's order was "being filled."

Then Izvestia editorialized: "Buying prescription lenses is a problem for thousands of our people. Dozens of organizations are involved in making them, not one of which is fully responsible. The crux of the matter is that there is no single responsible bureau. The Central Administration for Medical Equipment in the Ministry of Health of the U.S.S.R. plans the production of lenses and frames for the whole nation, and regional economic councils 'adapt' this plan to local needs.

"There are four semi-domestic enterprises in the Russian Republic capable of making prescription lenses. But A.M. Yevgenyev, chief of one of them, is nagged by hundreds of telephone calls and letters from indignant customers. But he cannot help his patients: his shops, which have to serve almost the entire country, can't even meet Moscow's demand. On March 11 they refused to accept new orders so as to 'digest' those already in hand. It is intolerable that there isn't a single optical shop in 29 regional and district centers of the Russian Republic. People have to travel hundreds of miles to the capital to order eyeglasses."

This is government "care" action at its extreme.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The backstage maneuvering to stage a summit conference between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin began over a week ago, when Johnson commissioned Llewellyn Thompson, the U.S. Ambassador to Moscow, now home on leave, to get in touch with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who had just returned from Moscow. The two men are good friends, and Johnson asked them to discuss an agenda for a summit meeting.

LBJ remembered how Premier Khrushchev had come to the United Nations in 1960 and how, despite a previous friendly conversation between Khrushchev and Eisenhower at Camp David, the two did not see each other during the U.N. meeting and relations between Russia and the United States rapidly deteriorated thereafter.

President Johnson, therefore, abruptly cancelled his plans to entertain Prime Minister Hold of Australia at the LBJ ranch and asked Holt to meet him at Camp David instead. He flew back to Washington from a fund-raising dinner in Austin and sent some of his staff up to Camp David to prepare for the Australian's entertainment and later possibly Kosygin's.

What Johnson particularly wanted was to talk to Kosygin about the Vietnam war, and the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, by which Russia and the United States hope to persuade the rest of the world to check the spread of A-bombs. LBJ suggested to Ambassador Thompson, therefore, that the agenda be wide open to include not merely the Middle East but these other subjects.

However, after the Soviet delegation got under way from Moscow it was learned that although 60 Russians accompanied Kosygin there was not one Far East expert in the lot. This meant that Kosygin probably did not want to discuss Vietnam.

KOSYGIN'S COOLNESS

Also it developed that Kosygin was quite cool toward a meeting with Johnson and flatly refused to come to Washington.

Behind the coolness was the fact that the Russians were already in the bad graces of the Arabs. The Arabs had expected the Russian air force to intervene on their side in the war with Israel.

It's now learned that Nasser deliberately put out the "big lie" story of American and British planes supporting Israel in order to force the Russians to intervene. Instead ambassador Demitri Pogadaiev in Cairo informed Nasser in no uncertain terms that American planes were not participating in the war. He said that Soviet radar had been keeping a close watch on the Sixth Fleet and that not one American plane had gone near the battlefield.

It was learned later that Premier Kosygin was furious with Nasser for claiming he had been attacked by the American air force. The Arabs in turn were furious with the Russians, and appear still to be furious. It was to appease the Arabs that Kosygin called the U.N. General Assembly meeting.

American intelligence has been so carefully tuned in on Soviet messages exchanged between the Near East and Moscow that the state department learned only two hours after Israel had pounded the Arab air bases that the Russians considered the war as good as over. Even during the height of the fighting, the Kremlin began mapping its post-war diplomatic strategy.

All this is why Kosygin was not too enthusiastic about seeing Johnson. It would look as if the United States and Russia were conspiring together, and any move made by the United States is suspect by the Arab world today.

As a gesture to Kosygin, President Johnson went so far as to order the Pentagon to release new information on the air force strafing a Soviet vessel, the "Turkestan." Originally the air force claimed no American planes had gone near the Turkestan; but additional information indicated that we were wrong, and LBJ ordered the error made public immediately.

NOTE: Both the White House and the state department were concerned that Premier Kosygin not fail too badly at the U.N. It was feared that Moscow, if Kosygin did fail, would be compelled to take more drastic action to restore Russian prestige in Arab eyes.

NEGRO MUSEUM

There are many American museums displaying the cultural background of the Indian, but nothing substantial has been done in this field for the American Negro, though he represents 10 per cent of the population.

Young Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., has sponsored a bill to fill this need. It would create a commission of leading scholars to look into the establishment of a national museum of Negro history. Scheuer believes such a project would give Negro citizens a better sense of self-esteem.

What few people know is that the Negro has played a vital role in American history. While George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington are well known, others such as Chrispus Attucks, the first man to fall in the Boston Massacre, and Dr. Charles Drew, a pioneer in the development of blood plasma, are not.

Also, Matthew Hanson was the co-discoverer of the North Pole, preceding Perry by 45 minutes; Jean Du Sable is recognized by many historians as the first settler in Chicago; and Jan Matzeliger is the inventor of the shoe last, which revolutionized the shoe industry.

Rep. Scheuer wants to improve the "pride and self-image of Negro Americans by developing a better understanding of their past."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's National Political Strategists Launch '68 Campaign; Warn Union Leaders Not to Harass Lyndon Johnson

Washington, D.C.: -- The presidential campaign is on. Word has been dispatched to national labor leaders by their central headquarters here -- in a set of confidential position papers -- that it is later than they think and not as certain as they believe it to be that they will defeat the Republican nominee.

In these documents is the blunt warning against taking continuous political pot shots at President Johnson.

"Accepting the almost inevitable circumstance that the AFL-CIO will be supporting President Johnson in 1968 we are already moving to put muscle into that support. . ."

Then the "leadership (of American labor) is urged to forgo the luxury of criticizing the administration on relatively minor matters."

The warning then says bluntly: "There is a lesson here in the 1966 defeat of Gov. Brown of California. Many of our people were in the absurd position of urging all-out support for a candidate (Brown), the object of years of petty fault finding."

These white papers were prepared for labor's high command by some of the AFL-CIO's most astute political infighters. They're worried, though the polls show an increase in the President's popularity.

Their leader, George Meany, who now has greater access to the White House than any man in Washington, is personally dedicated to the President's re-election. So much so that, when in the past two years he has mused with friends about resigning, he has qualified his whimsy with the assertion that he wants to fight through '68 at the side of Lyndon Johnson. And Meany has a whim of iron.

Labor's political strategists don't fret easily. They know their own strength. But they realize, too, what is cutting in on their influence with the millions they lead. They know, for example, that many Republican governors and new senators are remaking the Republican image among the new millions in labor.

Not too long ago they were startled to see Sen. Percy talk to the Senate about Walter Reuther as though the auto union chief was a political blood brother. Percy took excerpts from the publication of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Dept. and then added: "No amount of paraphrasing on my part could substitute for the eloquent testimony of Mr. Reuther."

And such governors as Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, Raymond Shafer and Minnesota's Harold LeVander have been "dialogue-ing" with labor -- in some instances appointing them to state boards.

This doesn't exactly give the Republicans the proletarian cartoonist's image of the big-bellied capitalists with dollar signs on their white vests. Add to all this the barnstorming of Sen. Hatfield, a familiar face at union meetings, be they on the waterfront or in steel union halls, and the quiet liaison of Sen. Brooke and some unions and one gets a swift view of what is disturbing the dynamists of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE).

Not the least of COPE's concern is the beardless youth -- 26 million of whom will begin voting between the end of 1967 and 1972. Secret COPE polls have disclosed that the younger people, in and out of labor (and the outsiders worry COPE's strategists just as much as their own members), are "not with it." Certainly they have only slight identity with the veterans of the ancient struggles on turbulent picket lines. The newcomers are a status-conscious, tax-conscious, race-conscious "work class" not eager to carry that label. So COPE has sent its strategists over to the AFL-CIO Educational Dept. for at least two meetings. National labor leaders were included there as well as at a March 22nd skull session in Chicago on how to get the young.

There are meetings galore -- with Democratic Senators who won last time and those who lost and those who fear losing, such as Idaho's Frank Church, Indiana's Birch Bayh, and Wisconsin's Gaylord Nelson.

And, says COPE, in these documents: "recognizing that, in spite of our bipartisan posture, a preponderance of endorsed candidates in 1968 will be Democrats, we are working to fortify our relationship with national party organizations. . .

"We are holding meetings at which the incumbents and labor and party people can plan together."

They're wise men, these strategists. It's only 16 campaigning months to election day.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

LET'S BE CORRECT

THE TIME may have arrived when the American people should quit trying to be so puppy-dog friendly to the world and assume a more dignified posture of "correctness."

Americans are, perhaps, the friendliest people on earth. Part of it comes from our bigness and isolation. At home we see few foreigners. An alien accent intrigues us. In any erudite cocktail party the crowd is generally thickest around the foreign visitor.

We have, for a long time, suffered from a missionary guilt complex. It's an interesting combination of smugness and concern. We are proud of the "American Way." We feel sure that our outlooks and techniques are superior to those of most other countries. We would like to share our wisdom. Hence, the missionary. On the other hand, we are easily guilt-ridden because of our relative opulence. So we give, often lavishly.

OUR BRITISH cousins in their great days were somewhat like us, but not much. They were eloquently and sometimes arrogantly proud of the Empire. They wept a little for the heathen. They had their heroic missionaries and teachers who went forth into the pools of ignorance and fever to discourage infanticide, stop cannibalism and outlaw suttee. But hard on their heels came the flag and the traders.

As the Basuto chief bitterly told one of my old anthropology professors: "When the white man came here he had the Bible and we had the land. Now we've got the Bible and he's got the land."

Among the more recent colonial powers you might classify, in descending order of humanity, the French, the Dutch, the Belgians, the Germans and the Japanese. The Russians were never well enough organized in the 18th and 19th centuries to seize distant lands from primitive peoples. But in their conquest and treatment of the European satellites they would go to the bottom of the list.

Only the Americans were haunted by their strength and nervous about their prosperity. Only the Americans set forth wistfully to make the world love them.

FUNNY THING. The Israelis bombed a U.N. force in the Gaza Strip and nine Indian and two Brazilian soldiers were killed. The diplomats in the U. N. Security Council all tried to top each other in expressions of regret and grief. But 54,000 Americans died in what was billed as an official U.N. action in Korea. How much weeping did the United Nations do for our boys?

There is the human inclination to make the friend of your enemy your enemy. All our largesse to India was forgotten the moment we gave arms to Pakistan. And the Pakistanis damned us for our aid to India.

FOR MANY years Americans tried to make themselves loved in the Near East. The American University in Beirut has educated generations of Arab leaders. We are lavish with Fulbright scholarships. We poured tremendous aid funds into Arab nations, including those whose oil-rich sheiks bought Cadillacs by the shipload and rented whole hotels in Switzerland.

But because America had promoted Israel we were hated. And when Gamal Abdel Nasser, in the bleak early hours of June 6, tried to alibi the collapse of his air force by claiming that American and British planes had shot it down, the whole Near East bought it immediately. Mobs converged on the American Embassies. The American libraries went up in flames. Arab nation after Arab nation, whose leaders must have known better, severed relations with thunderous anger. In a few hours we became the official scapegoat of all the snafued Arab world.

MAYBE WE ought to relax. Maybe we should quit trying to be loved. Maybe we should assume that we will be spit on. America is a complacent dragon, a fine beast on which to beat with wooden swords and have one's picture taken standing on its back. Hatred of it is a huge convience for the government which is entangled in its own stupidity.

So be it. If we expect to be hated we will be freer to do intelligent things. We won't have to keep shoring up corrupt regimes in the hope that they will become reliable friends. We can spend our foreign aid more wisely. We can seal off some famous rat holes.

WE CAN say, "Look, your excellency. Your mob burnt our free library, which happens to be the biggest and best in your country. If you want it back, jail the leaders and build us a building. We'll just replace the books."

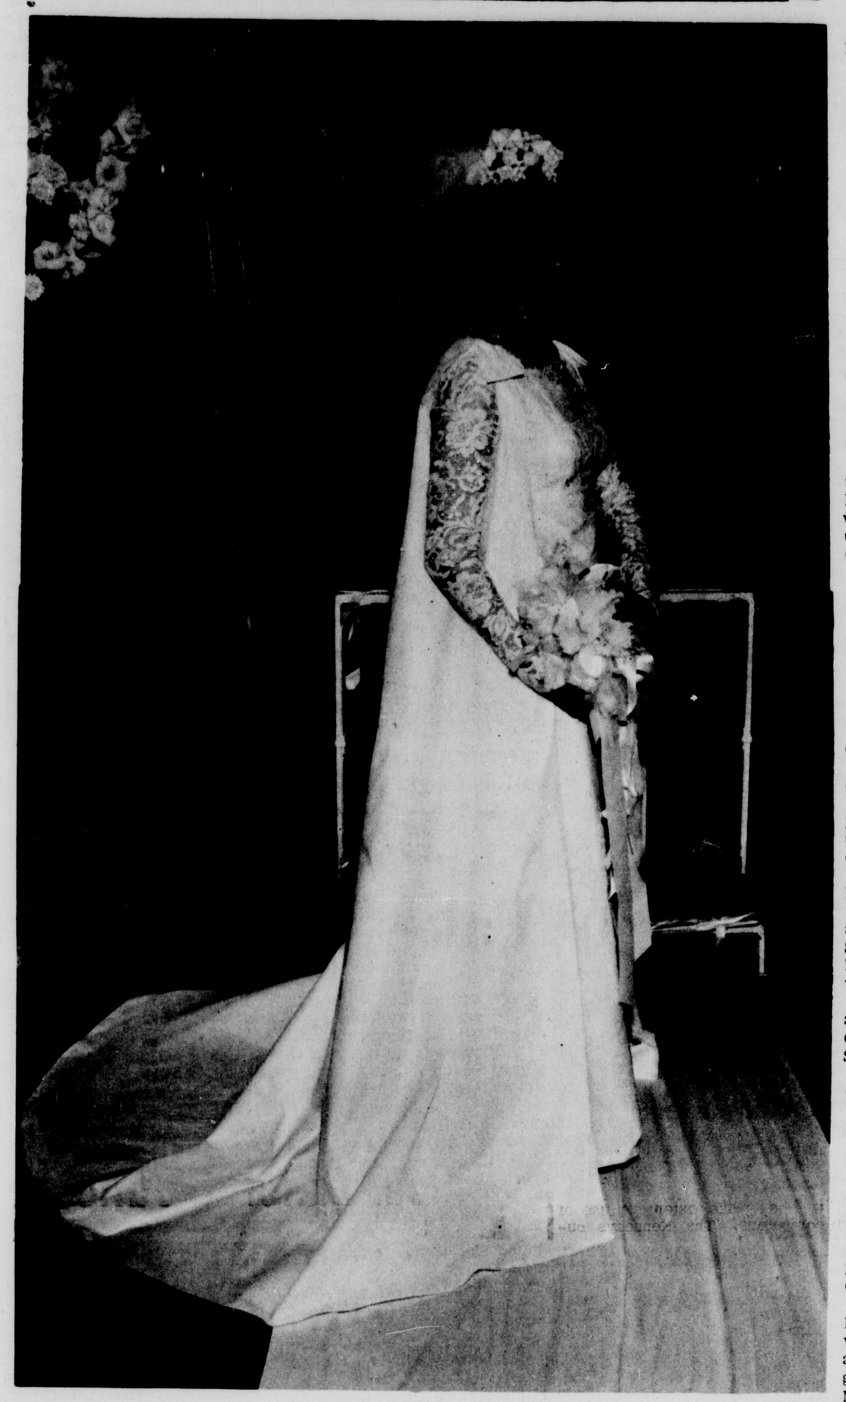

Or, "See here, your highness. We figure you'll gut us the first time it's convenient, but in the meantime we'd like to help your people. If you've got a sound plan and a way to keep your gang from cracking the safe we may bank - roll it."

This kind of talk will make more sense to more people than our past habit of turning the other cheek with a sickly grin. Everybody's pal -- hell! It just didn't work. Let's be stiffly correct for a change, and maybe they'll conclude we're not so crazy after all.

FOR TIMES OF WEARINESS
By Grace V. Watkins

How many times, is couraged by a gray Enveloping of weariness, we say, "The roads of need are long, the vales are

How many times, discouraged by a gray

Enveloping of weariness, we say,

"The roads of need are long, the vales are deep.

Lord, why must precious hours be spent in sleep?"

But oh, the floried comforting, that He

Who never wearies, who is ever free

From prisoning of time, well understands

That we would minister with hearts and hands

In wider - reaching service if we could!

What shining joy to realize that God

Can touch the humblest deed, the lowliest word,

And multiply its power to heal and bless

Beyond what we could ever drean or guess!

Four- Hitter By Rookie Dick Hughes

Maris' 8th Inning Homer Lifts Cards Past Phils

Roger Maris figures you don't need much pull to go places . . . from 10th to first, for example . . . in a hurry. All it takes is a little extra push.

Maris socked an eighth inning homer that lifted St. Louis' streaking Cardinals past Philadelphia 3-2 Friday night and stretched their National League lead to three games.

The Cardinals struggled to their sixth straight victory on the strength of Maris' tie-breaking shot and the four-hit pitching of rookie Dick Hughes after arriving in St. Louis at 5 a.m. on a flight from the West Coast, where they'd completed a 10-game road trip.

"These are the kind of days when you've got to push yourself, when everybody's got to work harder," Maris said, explaining that most of his teammates had gotten little or no sleep before taking on the Phillies.

"It's nice to be in first place," added the slugging outfielder, who finished 10th in the American League with the New York Yankees last season. "I'm certainly glad I'm on a team capable of being in first place."

In other NL action, Pittsburgh scored three runs in the ninth inning for a 4-2 victory over second place Cincinnati, Atlanta ran its winning streak to four games by trouncing New York 12-4, San Francisco smacked Los Angeles 7-1 and Chicago nipped Houston 9-8.

Maris' fifth homer of the season left him 56 short of the all-time record he set with the Yanks six years ago. But home runs, and home run records, are of little interest to the 33-year-old veteran now. He'd rather point to his .302 average and 25 runs batted in for the Cards.

"When you're in a big park (Busch Stadium), you concentrate on making contact with the ball," he said, "and that's much better than trying to pull everything.

"I was just trying to get on as a leadoff hitter (in the eighth) because Cepeda was up behind me. We're all pulling for one another. One or two guys aren't going to do it. The whole team has to be working together."

After Maris' homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth, the Phillies loaded the bases in the ninth before Hughes struck out pinch hitter Doug Clemens, completing his seventh victory against two setbacks. Hughes blanked the Phils after giving up consecutive homers to Rich Allen and John Callison in the first inning.

The Pirates broke loose in the ninth inning at Cincinnati after Jim Coker's eighth inning homer gave the Reds a 2-1 edge. Pinch hitter Maury Wills delivered the tying run with a single and reliever Bob Lee wild-pitched another across before Jose Pagan's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

Gene Alley homered for the Pirates, who handed the Reds their fifth loss in six games.

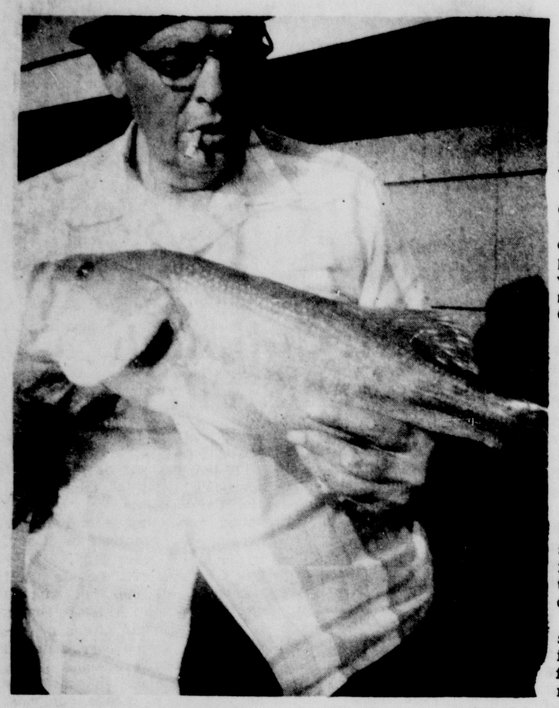

Mack Jones drove in three runs with two singles and a double and Felipe Alou had three hits and scored two runs as the Braves buried the Mets under a 13-hit barrage.

Winner Ken Johnson gave up a first inning homer to Cleon Jones, but the Braves shelled Met starter Bob Shaw for five runs in the first two innings and breezed the rest of the way.

Left-hander Mike McCormick scattered nine hits and rapped a two-run homer as the Giants trimmed the Dodgers for the sixth time in seven meetings this year. Willie Mays also homered for San Francisco, marring the pitching debut of Jim Hickman, an outfielder called in from the LA bullpen to hurl the last two innings.

McCormick, who yielded a bases-empty homer by Jim Lefebvre, boosted his pitching record to 7-3 while loser Don Sutton slipped to 4-9.

Lee Thomas' pinch hit single in the ninth drove in the winning run for the Cubs, who tied the score at 8-8 with a two-run rally in the eighth. Billy Williams and Ernie Banks each hit his 12th homer for Chicago while Houston's Jim Wynn walloped No. 18. Rusty Staub, Jim Landis and Julio Gotay also connected for the Astros.

EDGAR CROUTHERS landed this six-pound bass at Whitten's Lake.

Hughes Fans Phillies Clemens With Bases Full

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Dick Hughes started he looked like he was through. Byt the time he was through, Hughes was just getting started.

The St. Louis Cardinals pitcher laughed between bites from his sandwich as he recalled the dramatic third strike he threw past pinch hitter Doug Clemens with the bases loaded in the ninth inning. The pitch gave the Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

"I feel like going out there and pitching another game," the 29-year-old rookie said. "I was just getting started."

With a count of three-and-two, Clemens fouled off two pitches. The third one he watched zip by.

"I guess he figured I'd thrown those two straight strikes and wasn't going to throw a third," Hughes said as he took off his glasses to rub his eyes.

"I knew that pitch was a strike," Hughes added "All the umpire had to do was call it. I was already walking off the mound."

Hughes, 7-2, was so happy he even laughed when he talked, about the consecutive homers by Richie Allen and Johnny Callison in the first inning. At the time it looked like a short night for Hughes and a long one for the Cardinals.

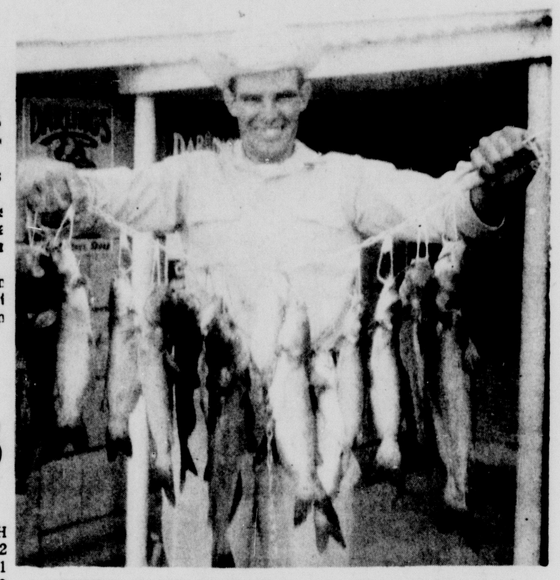

The homers didn't really shake me up too badly," Hughes said. "I know I'd get loose pretty soon. I didn't have my good fastball in the first inning. I also didn't have my guard up.

"I was trying to hit spots. They got the homers and I decided not to throw to spots anymore."

Hughes said pitching coach Billy Muffett gave him som advice in the third inning. "H said I wasn't driving off th rubber. After he told me that started opening up and my fas ball got better."

Roger Maris contributed hi own dramatics as he lined a homer in the eighth inning fo the winning run.

"I take them any way I can get them," Roger said. "I'm not going to be choosy about them being dramatic."

Chance then made the talk academic by outduelling Joel Horlen, who lost his first game after eight victories.

The victory ended a three-game losing string for Chance and made him the American League's first 10-game winner at 10-5. He was knocked out four straight times before Friday.

Killebrew's 375-foot shot in the seventh inning gave the muscular veteran the major league home run lead over Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who has 21.

Rickey Clark and Minnie Rojas teamed up for California's three-hitter over Kansas City.

Rojas bailed Clark out of an eighth inning jam and then drove in an insurance run with a ninth inning single. Jim Fregosi had driven in the game's first run against loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter with a single in the eighth after Jay Johnstone's double.

Al Downing pitched a six-hitter for the Yankees and belted one of three solo homers that accounted for all of New York's runs against Detroit's Denny McLain.

Steve Whitaker and Tom Tresh had the other Yankee homers as McLain's total for the season ballooned to 22. He allowed 42 last year, the most in Tiger history.

Paul Casanova ripped a three-run homer off Steve Barber, giving the Senators all their runs against the Orioles.

Casanova's shot followed singles by Frank Howard and Cap Peterson after Barber had retired the first 11 Senators in order. Those were the only hits off Barber, who worked five innings.

Baltimore knocked out winner Phil Ortega in the eighth inning but Dave Baldwin and Darold Knowles choked off the late rally.

Joe Foy hammered two triples and two singles as the Red Sox clawed the Indians. Foy scored three runs and drove in another in the 13-hit Boston attack against four Cleveland pitchers.

Tony Conigliaro drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Carl Yastrzemski also stroked a pair of hits. Lee Stange went the distance for the victory, losing his shutout in the last two innings after the Red Sox had run up an 8-0 lead.

Killebrew Smacks 22nd For Win

Cal Ermer, feeling the pinch of the pitching shorts, got a welcome shot in the arm from Dean Chance, who benefitted from a similar shot by Harmon Killebrew.

Chance pitched a brilliant three-hitter and Killebrew provided the game's only run with his 22nd homer of the year as the Minnesota Twins nipped Chicago 1-0 Friday night.

It was a change of pace for Ermer, the Twins' new manager. In 15 previous games, his staff had managed just three complete games and had allowed four or more runs 10 times.

Chance's effort was the top individual pitching job in the American League where California blanked Kansas City 2-0, New York dropped Detroit 3-1, Washington nipped Baltimore 3-2 and Boston battered Cleveland 8-4.

Ermer and Twins' President Cal Griffith huddled before the game and discussed the possibility of promoting some pitching help from Denver of the Pacific Coast League. But the idea was rejected.

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian Football League players Friday voted to accept a pension plan proposal which should be in operation this year. The 17-point proposal, earlier approved by the league's nine clubs, calls for each team to pay $300,000, to be matched by the players, into the fund each year.

DAILY EXERCISE

I have found there are three basic exercises which strengthen me spiritually. The first is the exercise of prayer. The second is that of reading the Bible. The third is one that is vital to every Christian - that of asking in prayer each day that you might allowed to talk to someone about the Christian way of life.

WHICH BULL SIRED CALVES that averaged 28 pounds heavier at 205 days than those from the other bull? You can't tell by looking, says John Massey, University of Missouri extension livestock specialist at Columbia. A good cattleman, when selecting beef cattle breeding stock, relies on records in addition to the eye according to Massey. Individual records, on bulls, cows, and calves, are necessary for informed selection and culling. Based on records, it was predicted that calves from one of the bulls above would average 27.7 pounds heavier at weaning time. The average was 28 pounds difference. The best calves came from the bull at right.

Radar Weather Reports Are As Close as Radio

By Leonard F. Hand
Agricultural Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Weather Radar Reports are one of your most helpful tools for planning day-to-day outdoor activity. Once the forecaster has alerted you to the expectation of wet weather during the day, radar reports locate and follow advancing rain patterns until they move within range.

The radar report first of all verifies the existence of developing or spreading showers predicted by the forecaster. Next, they describe the location and extent of shower patterns, the direction and speed with which they are moving, and whether they are increasing or decreasing in intensity. They may also indicate that extremely active cells are capable of producing hail or damaging winds.

When radar describes the existence of a line of thunderstorms 20 miles northwest of Portageville, moving southeastward at 20 miles per hour, we can expect to sight approaching thunderclouds in about an hour. Another report might indicate only widely scattered thunderstorm cells 20 miles northwest of Portageville with little or no movement noted. It is up to the farmer, foreman or resort owner to decide what action to take to prepare for rapidly approaching potentially hazardous weather, or to keep a weather eye open in the event that the stationary thunderstorm begins to move his way.

Radar reports available through the ESSA Weather Wire to Missouri Bootheel mass news disseminators are as close to you as your portable radio. They give you the capability of making maximum use of planning time when approaching wet weather threatens your work or your life.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Local farmers are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of using post-emergence chemical weed control applications to control weeds in cotton.

Of course, the use of post-emergence chemicals in cotton has become a common practice in this area during recent years. In spite of this, unfavorable weather conditions experienced during the spring planting season both last year and this year, have changed some farmers' opinions regarding the use of post - emergence chemicals. A high percentage of the cotton farmers in the area used a pre - emergence weed control chemical when cotton was originally planted this spring and a number of farmers used a combination of chemicals. Much of the cotton was replanted, and in a number of cases an additional pre - emergence chemical weed control treatment was made. In many cases the cotton fields were finally planted to soybeans, and farmers are now experiencing considerable damage to soybeans resulting from the chemical weed control treatments previously applied for cotton on the same fields. As a result, comments from many cotton farmers indicate that they are planning on going easier on pre - emergence chemicals and are going to concentrate more on the use of post - emergence chemicals for cotton next year.

This decision on the part of many farmers would seem to be well justified for at least two reasons. First, we do not have adequate research on the use of some combinations of pre-emergence chemicals or the use of more than one application of pre-emergence chemicals, so there is a considerable gamble in applying either. The use of pre - emergence chemicals for cotton is still an important practice, but they should be used in accordance with recommendations based on adequate research to make them conclusive. Secondly, we have a variety of post - emergence chemical weed control treatments that farmers can use later in the season to maintain a weed-free condition in cotton fields. Beginning early in the life of the crop, non-fortified herbicidal aids are recommended when cotton is two inches or more in height but before cracks occur in the stem covering of the cotton plant during true bark formation. Oils should be used as soon as possible after weeds come up at the rate of five to seven gallons per acre. Not more than two applications should be made at seven - day intervals.

After cotton is at least three inches tall, either DSMA or MSMA can be used as a directed spray at rates up to two pounds of MSMA or three pounds of DSMA per acre. A reliable surfactant should be added to the spray mixture at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. DSMA or MSMA should be applied only when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher. Not more than two applications should be made to a crop with no treatments made after the first bloom appears.

After cotton plants are at least six inches tall, Diuron (Karmex) plus a surfactant can be used as a directed spray to control annual weeds at the base of cotton plants. Apply at the rate of .3 to .5 Diuron per acre with a reliable surfactant added at the rate of one - fourth to one - half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. This treatment should be made before weeds are three inches tall.

A mixture consisting of Diuron (Karmex) plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be applied in the same manner as the Diuron-surfactant solution outlined above for the control of annual weed grasses two to four inches tall. Recommended rates call for the use of one - half pound of Diuron and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as described for the Diuron - surfactant mixture. Best results are obtained when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher and no more than two treatments should be made per crop.

A mixture consisting of Prometryne plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be used in the same manner as the Diuron-DSMA - surfactant combination. Recommended rates are one-half pound of Prometryne and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as suggested for the Diuron - DSMA -surfactant solution. Annual weeds should not be over five inches tall for best results.

Good weed control should be accomplished from the use of these treatments if recommendations as to the chemicals to apply, rates of application, proper size of cotton and weeds, and temperature conditons are followed.

Of Interest to Homemakers

By Fredericka Plummer

CHARLESTON - At a recent conference, a gentlemen in the investment business told how he counseled families who asked about investing some of their money. Before investing he advised looking at the total family financial program. He recommended an emergency fund, life insurance, and a decision about home ownership, before making an investment.

You will find different guidelines for an emergency fund. One is $1500 to $5000. Another says your income for 3 to 6 months. If you put too much in an emergency fund, you will have idle money. It has to earn 2% to 3% just to keep up with inflation.

Life insurance is important because it can give you an estate now while you pay later. One guideline for the amount is 2 to 3 years your annual income. More than the minimum is desirable. The cheapest type of policy is probably the best insurance for the starting family.

Not every one should strive to be a home owner. If you are temporary in your location, you probably would be ahead to rent. Many people of retirement age would be better off in an apartment, rather than having to cope with the responsibilities that goes with owning a home.

If you are financing a home, don't try to pay off too fast in your anxiety to get it clear. You should have some surplus funds to be used in other ways, such as investing.

If you are going to save for an emergency fund or an investment, you may need a gimmick. A piggy bank is perhaps the oldest and most widely used method. Remember to empty it periodically to put your money to work drawing interest.

Soviet Press Barely Mentions Summit Talk

MOSCOW (AP) — A 37-world report that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met appeared near the bottom of Pravda's front page today. It was the Soviet press' only mention of the Glassboro, N.J., summit conference.

Papers other than the Soviet Communist party organ apparently went to press too early for the brief dispatch by the official news agency Tass.

NAMESVILLE

FRANKFORD, KY. (AP) - Travelers in Kentucky may wonder at the appropriateness of the names of communities they drive through.

Oddville is far from Ordinary, as might be expected, and Wisdom is the next thing to Freedom. Yet, not much separates Frearsville from Paradise and South is north of Sweden.

The Bluegrass State's Sunrise is in the north, it has only one Shoulderblade and its Pride is nowhere near a fall. And Eighty Eight is on KY 90.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

County Issue Ties up Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate got tied up in knots Friday over a bill to require the Jackson County court to remit some of the county road and bridge money to the cities where it is collected, including Kansas City.

As the bill passed the House, the court would have been required to send back 50 per cent of the funds but the Senate changed that to 25 per cent on an 18-13 vote then passed the bill and sent it back to the House, 31-1.

Debate on the bill took almost an hour.

Passed and sent to the governor were bills to:

Set up a special state fund of $150,000 to take care of emergency situations arising when the legislature is not in session. The governor would head the emergency fund commission.

Allow local governments to set up retirement systems for all their employes. The Senate agreed to a House change putting Jefferson County back in the bill.

Pay St. Louis County election judges and clerks $20 a day instead of $14.

Pay judges of second class counties 10 cents a mile for their travel.

The problem of congressional redistricting still awaits solution in the legislature's last week.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to increase the term of the Jackson County prosecutor from two to four years and raise his salary from $15,000 to $22,500.

An emergency clause approved for the bill, which also requires the prosecutor to devote full time to his job, and forbids private practice now permitted, puts the bill into effect the moment it is signed by the governor.

Girls Staters Return Home

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The 600 members of Missouri Girls State returned to their homes today, after choosing two girls to represent Missouri at Girls' Nation, to be held in Washington in August.

The delegates are Christie Hedges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hedges, Camdenton, and Judith Wagner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Myron L. Wagner, Kansas City.

Their alternates are Metta Bailey of Kirkwood, and Valarie Huscher, Higginsville.

Eye Patches Turn up In Congressmen's Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Moshe Dayan look is hitting Congress.

Black eye patches like those worn by the Israeli defense minister and director of the lightning-fast military victory over the Arabs are coming to congressmen in the mail.

There's no hint to the sender's identify except for a Santa Ana, Calif., postmark.

Tax High in 38 Counties

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, a taxpayers' association ever insistent that taxes be held to a minimum, said today 38 Missouri counties could lower tax levies without curtailing services.

Benton County, the survey said, could lower its levy as much as 46 cents on $100 assessed valuation and still meet its budget.

Thirty-seven others could reduce tax levies from 3 cents up, the survey said.

It blamed three county failures for the higher-than-needed taxes.

Failure to take into account higher assessed valuations in setting the levies, appropriating more than is needed and underestimating non-property tax revenue.

"In fairness to taxpayers," the survey said, "a governmental unit should not burden them with a higher tax rate than needed to finance expenditures. When balances are accumulated in an amount larger than needed to operate on a cash basis, tax rate reductions should be made and the money left in the possession of the taxpayers."

The survey listed these counties as levying too great a property tax and the amount it could be reduced:

Audrian 9 cents, Camden 7, Carroll 4, Cass 4, Chariton 16, Cole 3, DeKalb 9, Dunklin 7, Grundy 10, Harrison 24, Henry 17, Lincoln 26, Miller 9, Monroe 16, Newton 15, Osage 15, Pemiscot 19, Perry 6, Pettis 5, Phelps 3, Pike 19, Platte 13, Ralls 21, Randolph 6, Ray 14, Saline 19, Ste. Genevieve 7, Stone 4, Texas 22, Vernon 5, and Washington 3.

Ann Landers

Smart Cookies Are Proud of Their Heritage

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a letter from a 15-year-old girl whose foreign-born parents refused to speak English.

My parents came to this country from Latvia. They spoke Latvian all the time. When I started school I couldn't speak one word of English. I attended Latvian church, joined a Latvian Girl Scout troup, took piano lessons from a Latvian teacher and pretty soon I got to hate everything Latvian because it was forced on me.

When I was 14 my folks sent me (screaming) to a Latvian camp in Michigan. There I met a Latvian boy who changed my thinking. He helped me understand that my parents were trying to preserve their culture, and that the only way to do it was through their children.

I met several kids who were proud to be Latvians. (I had always been ashamed.)

Now I know I want to marry a Latvian boy (I don't know who yet) and pass on this wonderful heritage to my children. --- PROUD NOW

Dear Proud: Some members of minority groups wish they could be something else. It takes a smart cookie to be proud of her heritage. I salute you.

Dear Ann Landers: Nice weather is here -- and with it the eternal affliction. Guests. I sometimes wish we didn't have such a comfortable and attractive summer home because uninvited friends and relatives think we are running a hotel. I am just now recuperating from my third batch of visitors and most of the summer is ahead.

I am going through the menopause but I manage to hold down a full-time job as well as keep the house going. All winter I look forward to casual outdoor living during the summer months. With company around it is a strain, not to mention the extra work.

Some people enjoy out-of-town guests. I am not writing for them. I am writing for myself and for others who want to be alone. If any of you reading this column wonder if you are a welcome guest, ask yourself one question: "Was I invited?" If you were, GO. If not, do somebody a favor and stay home. --- HOLIDAY OUT, NOT INN

Dear Holiday: Here's your letter and lotsa luck. The pests never think you mean THEM. For the repeaters, a "Sorry, not this year," should be the standard reply when they announce they're going to honor you with a visit.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you settle a family dispute? I have a very good friend who attends another school on the other side of town. We are both honor students and do not goof off. We like to talk on the phone during the week every night to relieve the monotony of studying. I say a 15- or 20-minute conversation is not excessive. My mother says five minutes is plenty for teen-agers to "yak about nothing."

Please take a stand on this. Your column is respected in our home. --- CLOCKED IN POUGHKEEPSIE

Dear Clocked: I feel that 15 minutes is not unreasonable for a teen-age phone chat --- provided, of course, Mom or Dad does not need the phone for a specific reason. Telephoning is a good outlet --- furthermore, kids who are at home are not out getting into trouble.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

TOM B. STROUP
Director and Agricultural Agent

Many homemakers have asked for the best way to control cockroaches in the home.

MU Extension Entomologist Leroy Peters says properly applied insecticides will get them every time!

But first, all cupboards must be cleaned of food and utensils and shelves washed with soap and water.

Then spray lightly the walls and underneath sides of shelves, bottom sides of drawers, under the sink and lavatory, around baseboard and drainboards . . . and any other places that are hard to reach.

Don't spray any surface like bread-boards that will be in direct contact with food.

The best insecticides are 2-percent chlordane or one-half percent dieldrin. If roaches seem to be resistant to these, try a one-half percent solution of diazinon . . . a solution of one-half percent dichlorvos plus one-half percent dieldrin . . . or a one-percent solution of ronnel known as Korlan.

How To Get Chiggers Out of The Yard

Many homeowners have asked how they can eliminate the menace of chiggers in their lawns. Applying chlordane, dieldrin, toxaphene or diazinon to the grass will work.

One gallon of mixed spray will cover about a thousand square feet of lawn surface. Follow directions on the container of insecticide for mixing.

Do not let small children or pets on the treated grass until after it has been sprinkled and is dry.

Chemical Weed Control In Soybeans

There are two general methods used in making chemical applications to control weeds in soybeans.

First, there are the preemergents. These chemicals are applied to the soil either before or immediately after planting the crop. There are only two chemicals included as post emergents -- one is applied shortly after the soybeans emerge and the other is applied as a pre-bloom treatment.

The recommended surface-applied preemergents include amiben, randox, sodium P.C.P. and "ramrod."

Under favorable conditions, amiben will control most broad-leaved and grass - type annual weeds. However, some cultivation may be necessary - depending upon rate of application and soil type and rainfall. Randox as a preemergent generally contols grass - type weeds more effectively than the broad - leaved group. Randox is especially effective in controlling giant foxtail.

Ramrod, closely related to randox but recommended a year ago for the first time, has the advantage of being considerably easier to handle. As of the present time, Ramrod has F.D.A. approval for soybeans harvested for seed purposes only.

Treflan, a relatively new herbicide, is recommended to be used on soybeans in 1967. To be effective, Treflan must be incorporated in the soil before the beans are planted. Treflan is quite effective in controlling grass - type weeds like giant foxtail, shattercane and johnsongrass seedlings. Treflan is less effective in controlling cocklebur, morning glory, velvet leaf, or prickly sida.

The second group is post-emergent herbicides -- 2, 4-d butyric is the only post-emergent recommended. It is applied during pre to mid-bloom and is effective only on such broad-leaved weeds as cocklebur and morning glory. Tenoran, a new herbicide, is considered in the experimental stage. It should be applied before weeds are more than 2 inches tall.

There are a number of new herbicides for soybeans. These include planavin, vernam, and dacthal as soil incorporated preemergents, lorox and alanap plus as surface applied preemergents.

Being relatively new these herbicides should be considered experimental and should be used on limited acreage until more information relative to their performance is available.

Time To Control Bagworms and Spider Mites On Evergreens

Bagwom feeding will become quite evident on evergreens in the weeks just ahead. Spider Mites are now present on evergreens. Both of these pests should be controlled now before damage becomes more severe during the hot, dry weather of July and August. If you use either carbaryl or toxaphene for bagworms, include either Aramite or dicofol (Kelthane) for mites. If diazinon or malathion are used for bagworms, these will control mites but a second application will be needed in 7 to 10 days.

How To Mix Chemical - Use carbaryl at rate of 2 lbs. of 50% per 100 gallons of water, or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use toxaphene at rate of 3 lbs. (2 quts. 60-65% toxaphene emul concentrate) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use diazinon at rate of 0.5 lbs. (1 lb. of 50% diazinon wettable powder) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

1 teaspoon 50% wettable powder or 25% emul. concentrate per gallon of water.

Brittons Honored

Charlie Britton of Bell City and his son, Deward Britton, of Wardell were honored Sunday at a birthday dinner. The name Britton was misspelled in Thursday's Daily Standard.

If You Were the Judge

Only Delivered Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend

While Henry had plenty of assets, they didn't compare to the assets of his shapely girl friend Carolyn. While she carried her assets with her, however, Henry kept most of his in his library safe. One day Henry pointed to the safe and told Carolyn that he was giving her a gift of all the diamonds that the safe contained. Whereupon, she thanked Henry with a kiss on the cheek and they left the room. Henry, unfortunately, never returned, for shortly thereafter, he turned in his life subscription and died.

Immediately, Carolyn sought to obtain possession of the numerous diamonds in the library safe but the executor of Henry's estate refused to recognize her claim to them.

"But they're mine," she insisted. "Henry specifically gave them to me."

"Nonsense," retorted the executor. "They've never left the safe. Therefore, how could Henry have given them to you. While you may have prospected Henry, as far as I'm concerned, you've got no prospect of getting the diamonds."

Bouncing angrily out of the room, Carolyn took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you recognize Carolyn's claim to the diamonds?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there is no gift unless there is a delivery and an acceptance of the thing being given. In this case, there was no delivery. (Based upon a 1956 Ohio Court of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

In most states, if not in all states, a son who is over the age of 21 is required to support his parents if they are too ill or too poor to support themselves.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

The prayers of the righteous have a powerful effect. (James 5:16, Moffatt)

PRAYER: Father, we thank Thee for the gift of prayer. Help us to accept what Thou dost will in answer to our prayers. Do what is best for us rather than what we wish. In Jesus' name. Amen.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

How to measure a newspaper ad

Assume, for a moment, that it were possible to clip this display message from each copy of this newspaper printed for today's issue, and that these clippings were neatly stacked before you.

First, remove all clippings which appeared in copies spoiled in distribution, or which were otherwise, undelivered, left over, returned, or used in our office for file or checking copies. Since no one read these, they can go into the wastepaper.

Second, remove those messages which appeared in copies delivered to subscribers behind in their payments, service copies to advertisers and agencies, employes, any complimentary or promotion lists, and all others which do not qualify as paid circulation. Just for the record, you might want to count the number of these, but then they go into the wastepaper, too.

Now our stack is down to only the paying customers. Count the number of clippings in the stack. When that's done (and the exact figure recorded), separate the clippings into three separate stacks – one for those distributed to readers in your central market; one for those distributed to readers living outside this market, but who shop here regularly; and one for those copies delivered to readers living elsewhere. Count each stack and, when you have these figures accurately recorded, divide the clippings in separate stacks by method of delivery (carriers, dealers, vendors, mail, and so forth), and count each stack.

You look a little tired at this point – we'll help by counting the number of clippings appearing in copies sold with premiums, in combination with other publications, and at special rates. We'll also count the number sold in clubbing offers or as a result of a contest or with an insurance offer.

Rested now? Give us a hand and we will sort out the clippings in separate stacks for each city and town in which copies were distributed (just exactly where every copy of this message went – to the paying customers only). Then we count each stack for the record.

Now, while you relax and finish reading this message after counting and measuring our circulation in so many different ways, perhaps you would like to see what it costs each of the paying customers to buy a copy of this newspaper?

Then again, if all this talking about some of the ways the Audit Bureau of Circulations regularly counts and measures our circulation has you tired out, just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC Report.

ABC's stacks of figures aren't nearly as tiring and tell you a great deal more about the distribution of your advertising messages in this newspaper.

Giving to the U.S.O. is not an act of absolution.

It will not even up your debt to all the young Americans around the world who serve us in the cause of freedom.

It is not intended to ease the knowledge that some are serving and we are safe...that some are in peril and we have peace.

We ask that you give not simply because of what your gift might do for you, but because of what it will mean to them.

Because every U.S.O. club is an arm around a lonely shoulder, from all of us.

Because every U.S.O. show is a message from home that tells him personally: we care!

Give because there are some three and a half million young Americans, some soon to die, who need the friendship, the welcome, the services that U.S.O. —and only U.S.O.—provides.

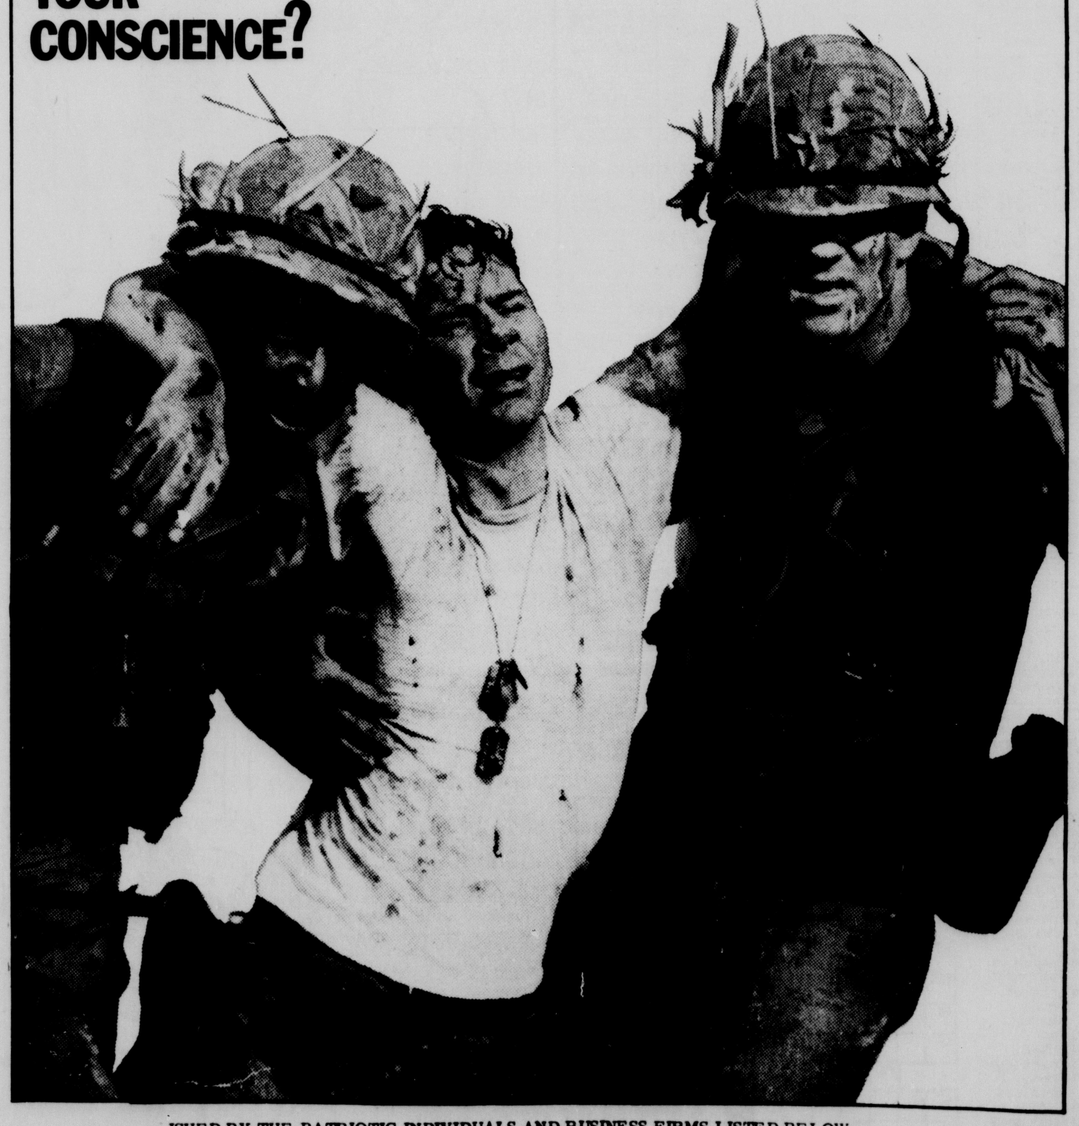

U.S.O. gets no government funds, is supported only by your contributions through your United Fund or Community Chest. Give now. U.S.O. depends on it.

And be sorry that's all you can do.

Someone you know needs U.S.O.

Airline Asks for Probe

BLOSSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The president of Mohawk Airlines has asked FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to investigate a "strong suggestion of sabotage" in the crash of a jetliner Friday that killed 34 persons near here.

In a telegram to Hoover Friday night, Robert E. Peach, Mohawk president, said "evidence has developed in course of notification of next of kin of crash victims which leads to strong suggestion of sabotage."

He did not give any details of the evidence.

In Washington, the FBI said it had no determination of the cause of the accident and no evidence of sabotage which would justify its entering the investigation as yet. FBI experts were on the scene to help identify the victims and were keeping in touch with local and federal aviation authorities, a spokesman said.

The plane — a BAC111 on Flight 40 bound from Syracuse, N.Y., to Washington, D.C. — plunged in a ball of flames onto Blossburg Mountain in north-central Pennsylvania at 2:50 p.m., shortly after it took off in overcast from Elmira, N.Y.

Investigators from several federal agencies, local authorities and state police met this morning to coordinate their investigations, which one spokesman said probably would take a week to 10 days.

Witnesses said the wreckage was scattered over a wide area and that nearly all the bodies were mutilated and dismembered.

"I was in World War II and I never saw anything like that," said Raymond Smith, 48, who visited the scene.

Before Peach sent his telegram, a Mohawk spokesman said the FBI was routinely investigating any possibility of sabotage. FBI agents also were sent to the scene to help identify victims, and the National Transportation Safety Board, a newly established unit in the Department of Transportation, sent investigators.

Former Maine Gov. John H. Reed, a member of the board, said Friday night the airplane's flight recorder tape had been found, intact and would be sent to Washington for analysis.

He said investigators had heard reports of a bomb but that there was "no evidence to that effect, which has come to our attention at this moment."

Residents of Blossburg, a town of 1,956, about 30 miles south of Corning, N.Y., said they could tell the airliner was in trouble as it flew over.

"It sounded like the engine kept cutting out," one man said.

Blossburg postmaster Louis Schultz said he saw the plane's left wing on fire and pieces of debris falling off.

"It was making a noise like a whistle," he said. "It was just like a toy going down — going down sideways."

Schultz later visited the crash scene and said the fuselage was gone, "just as if someone had stuck some dynamite in the center and blew it to pieces."

Witnesses said the plane came down on a flat area of the mountain top.

A temporary morgue was established in the Blossburg fire hall, but some observers said identification would be an "almost impossible job." In addition to the FBI crew, pathologists and dentists were called to aid in identification.

The pilot was identified as Capt. Charles Bullock, 44, of Cazenovia, N.Y., who had been with Mohawk nearly 15 years.

HOLDING A CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL has been presented posthumously to James R. Layne, for rescuing Richard Hockersmith, six, from drowning July 4. Layne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne of Diehlstadt hold the award.

Laynes Receive Hero Medal

BY LEO SCHADE

DIEHLSTADT -- Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne rural route, have received a Carnegie hero medal awarded posthumously to their son, James Randolph Layne, 17, who drowned after he pulled six-year-old Richard Hockersmith of East Prairie to safety.

The rescue followed a boating accident on chute seven at Dorena in the Mississippi River July 4.

The medal, four inches in diameter, encased in a two-inch transparent case, is inscribed:

"James Randolph Layne, who died helping to save Richard L. Hockersmith from drowning, Dorena, Mo., July 4, 1966."

Surrounding the inscription is the verse:

"Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The front side of the bronze mounted trophy is a picture of Andrew Carnegie, founder of the Hero Fund, established in 1906.

The Laynes previously received a $500 scholarship fund last month. This has been placed with funds for their daughter, Vicki, 13.

A Carnegie Medal also was given to Miss Marie Sorrells, 18, Owosso, Mich., a girl companion of James Layne, who brought Hockersmith to shore after young Layne initiated the rescue effort. She also received a $500 scholarship fund.

The Layne family received a copy of Missouri House resolution 174, commemorating the bravery of Layne.

The official presentation of the medal will be made to the family by the Kiwanis club of Charleston, which reported the rescue to the Carnegie Hero Fund.

Young Layne was a junior at Charleston high school and was an expert mechanic. He and Miss Sorrels had gone to the river to swim. After arrival, a small boat carrying Emro Hockersmith and three of his children, sank. They were going to an island for a picnic.

The father brought daughter, Susan, five and son, James, eight, to safety.

Richard Hockersmith, seven, became separated from the family and was unable to swim. Layne rescued the boy in 18 feet of water bringing him safely to more shallow depths.

Twenty or more adults and children were on the shore.

Richard Hockersmith, six, seated at left, was rescued by James R. Layne, 17, Diehlstadt, who lost his own life in bringing him to safety. Tornado Kills One, Injures 14

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)— One person died and at least 14 were hospitalized as a tornado slashed through Garden City and its farm area Friday night.

Civil Defense headquarters said 125 homes sustained major damage, and several hundred others had lesser damage. The survey was made for Civil Defense by Richard Rohleder, assistant police chief.

The storm moved from west to east across the north part of the city.

Mrs. Mamie Largent, 66, died in St. Catherine's hospital about 30 minutes after she was brought in from her farm home three miles northeast of town where she was caught by the twister.

Hospital attendants said one woman suffered a broken hip and at least two had broken arms. Most were treated for shock and minor injuries. Many received first-aid from rescue workers.

Among those taken to the hospital were a number of patients of the Briar Hill nursing home, which was damaged.

Victims left homeless were given shelter in the Methodist Church and the National Guard armory.

A new grade school in the northeast section, which is to be opened in the fall, lost its gym roof. Another grade school had a pole rammed through the west side of the building, and an annex—a steel structure — was demolished.

The high school stadium's press box was ripped away.

The office of Gov. Robert Docking in Topeka said it had sent Robert C. Harder, director of the state's technical assistance program, to Garden City to help with rehabilitation. National Guard units also were being alerted to help in the stricken area, the governor's office said.

Most of the heavy damage to homes occurred in the Briar Hill area in the northeast residential area.

Garden City has a population of about 14,000. It is located in the southwest part of the state, about 65 miles from the Colorado and Oklahoma lines.

Weather instruments at radio station KIUL measured the winds at 62 miles an hour. Power lines were down and telephone service disrupted. Many downtown store fronts were shattered and heavy tree damage was reported. The highway patrol's radio system was knocked out.

There had been some wind from the north and the air was brown with dust just before 9 p.m., but skies in the west were clear. About 8:55 p.m. there was a sprinkle of rain.

"There was a little whirlwind and then everything started blowing," said Kim Wells, a newsman for KIUL.

Bill Brown, editor of the Garden City Telegram, said he was attending a concert in Stevens Park near the downtown area. As the storm brewed, he dashed for his home in the northeast part of town.

"I just reached the house when my wife yelled for me to head for the basement," Brown said. "We crawled under a pool table...just then the roof gave in."

Brown, his wife, Lois, and 14-year-old daughter, Kathy, were uninjured. A son, David, 16, was not at home but was in no danger, Brown said.

"There wasn't much rain, a little hail," Brown said. "I thought it was all over and started to leave when it seemed to hit again. A beam fell down and I went back to the pool table."

Andy Erhart, superintendent of the Garden City Experiment Station, about two miles northeast of the city, said all the farm's outbuildings were lost. He and Mrs. Erhart and their 15-year-old son, Dana, were in the basement. Part of their home's roof and the windows were destroyed.

"We were lucky," Erhart said.

The Dodge City weather bureau said a number of funnel clouds were reported as the storm system moved east. None except the one at Garden City apparently touched down, the bureau said.

More Rain Falls On Flood Areas

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Heavy rains hit Eastern Kansas and Western and Central Missouri today, posing more troubles for those battling flood waters on the Missouri River and its tributaries.

Some of the rains along the Missouri tributaries were over an inch, the south part of Kansas City reporting 1.24.

Army Engineer workers, volunteers and convicts from the Missouri penitentiary still were battling to keep the levees intact along the Big Muddy. Already 21l private levees from Rulo, Neb., to the Mississippi have been reached.

Army Unit Ambushed

SAIGON (AP) — An American infantry company on a search-and-destroy mission was caught in a deadly crossfire of North Vietnamese automatic weapons and small arms and lost 76 killed and 24 wounded high in the central highlands, the U.S. Command disclosed today.

The bloody action near Dak To, 270 miles north of Saigon, took place Thursday, the command said, but the news was held up for "security reasons."

The badly mauled company of perhaps 150 men was part of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, the first Army combat unit to arrive in Vietnam, in May 1965. The company included many newcomers sent in as replacements for men rotated out of South Vietnam. It had been looking for the enemy since last Sunday but had had no contact until the surprise Red assault Thursday.

Shot Fired In Sunset

Police were called to Sunset addition early today, when Jerry D. Jackson, 306 Sunset Drive, informed them that a shot from a .22 caliber rifle had been fired by George D. Robertson.

The two had argued. Jackson and a woman friend were walking between Felker and Petty streets when the shot was fired. Jackson claimed the bullet came close enough to tear his clothing and burned his skin.

No charges were filed.

Legal Fees in Poverty Battle Run to $1,700

PORTAGEVILLE - The recent power struggle within the War on Poverty in Southeast Missouri might not have only been costly in the long range possibility of losing future OEO programs--it cost $1,700 for DAEOC to conduct its battle.

Information leaked out of the DAEOC organization this week that attorney fees in the move to dismiss Lloyd Phillips and William Graves came to about $1,700.

The "bill" from Don Dickerson, a Cape Girardeau attorney, was received recently in the Portageville office. His legal fees and expenses came to the $1,700.

Dickerson was "hired" by members of the DAEOC organization in March shortly after the struggle for control of the poverty program was renewed. During the conflict one of his first pieces of legal advice involved the seating of a delegation from Pemiscot County who had been challenged.

As the controversy grew over the dismissal of Phillips and Graves, Dickerson was repeatedly called on for "legal advice" in regard to the position of these two men.

The Cape Girardeau lawyer was also retained to represent DAEOC in the controversy with the regional headquarters of the Office of Economic Opportunity in Kansas City.

On numerous occasions Dickerson's advice was referred to in DAEOC minutes and statements sent out by the DAEOC office in Portageville.

It was brought out this week, after the word of Dickerson's fees had leaked out, that OEO regulations allow only $50 per day for consultant's fees and does not allow any special fee for an attorney. Consultants are normally hired on a "contract" basis, though written contracts are not routine. If paid as a consultant this would mean 34 days service by the lawyer.

OEO policy also requires documentation for expenditures in the form of consultants fees. It was reported that such documentation was being prepared last week.

The new executive director of DAEOC, A. W. Wright, said Wednesday that to the best of his knowledge the lawyer's fees, in round numbers, came to about $1,600.

He said they were all documented by Dickerson, with each figure being explained in the bill.

Wright, without referring to problems of the past within DAEOC, said things appear to be smoothing out and that DAEOC needs and he hopes will get the help of the press, the public and these people working within the program.

He also stated that the organization hopes to launch an information program to keep the public informed of what DAEOC is doing. Not being critical of any past operations, Wright said he feels that keeping the public informed is one of the most important functions that must be carried out in this type of a program.

Summit Talks Produce Air Of Optimism

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — American diplomats mixed optimism with caution today over prospects that two summit meetings at Glassboro will open the way toward solving major international issues. The fact that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met for five hours Friday, including three hours with no aides except interpreters—then agreed on another parley Sunday—was in itself regarded as a good omen.

Announcement of the follow-up session Sunday afternoon came as a surprise to the array of experts who figured the Friday meeting could only be a token one at best, considering how much difficulty the chiefs had all week over whether or where to get together.

As it turned out their first session at Hollybush, the brownstone residence of the Glassboro State College president, began with a handshake and ended with Johnson and Kosygin smilingly facing newsmen and a cheering crowd.

Kosygin concurred with Johnson's statement that their talks ranged over such issues as the Middle East crisis and Vietnam and that "we agreed it is now very important to reach international agreement on a non-proliferation treaty."

Presidential press secretary George Christian said the two leaders developed an understanding on the central question in the Middle East dispute—that "Israel does, of course, exist as a nation"—although they disagreed on other points.

Christian said Johnson hopes for a consensus on the other Middle East issues. He also reported that Secretary of State Dean Rusk, assigned to meet next week with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, is optimistic about chances for U.S.-Soviet concurrence on the draft of a proposed treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons.

The two private meetings by the chiefs plus the business lunch attended by their top advisers at the tree-shaded campus site Friday produced a sudden improvement in the tone of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Since Kosygin's arrival in New York a week ago for the U.S.-opposed U.N. General Assembly special session on the Middle East, the atmosphere had soured amid his public denunciation of American as well as Israeli policy and the arguments over a summit meeting.

But after the Glassboro parley, Johnson hailed "the spirit of Hollybush." He told a Democratic group in Los Angeles that this is the spirit of "reasoning together."

Johnson declared that he and Kosygin had agreed they both want "a world of peace for our grandchildren."

But the President added a note of caution that "deep and serious differences" remain. "One meeting does not make a peace," he said.

"We reached no new agreements—that does not happen in a single conversation—but I think we understand each other better," he said.

Woman Found Unconscious

DEXTER - Bernice Malone, 40, was injured in a one-car accident when her car ran off a gravel road and into a ditch three miles south of Dexter last night.

She was taken, unconscious, to Lucy Lee hospital at Poplar Bluff, where she is reported in critical condition.

The highway patrol said she might have suffered a heart attack since damage to her car was slight. She was found by a passing motorist.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the federal government has saved the American people from themselves in establishing uniform time during the summer it should try its hand in hoisting uniform highway signs.

The signs that are placed on the nation's streets and highways were not put there by through travelers unfamiliar with the thoroughfares.

If they had been they never would have been there.

Driving through Kansas City the motorist may be following a highway number west into Kansas.

He probably won't get there the first time.

He'll come to a sign and an arrow pointing to Kansas City, Kan.

That's where he should turn but he will learn that too late.

Highway numbers while plentiful outside a city may disappear in the business section or the motorist may be in a center lane with his view obscured by a truck in an outer lane. He easily can miss a turn.

In some states it is the practice to put highway turn signs on the turn corner. Other states let the motorists get accustomed to the idea gradually. The motorist passes several intersections but he is supposed to know exactly where to turn.

He often doesn't and may find himself several miles off the route before he makes the discovery that he guessed wrong.

A whole book could be written about highways bearing the same number which bend or go in one or more different directions in a city.

Miles of travel have been wasted by motorists who thought they were going in one direction toward a destination only to find that they were traveling the same highway in the opposite direction toward another destination.

A truck parked at a curb in the business section can eliminate a turn sign for all practical purposes. So can street decorations or merchant advertising signs unless they are carefully placed with loving consideration for strangers in town.

There is no evidence to support an argument which might be made that bewildered motorists hunting for road signs cause accidents. They do create impatience in motorists who are familiar with the territory and know where they are going. They also know how to use a horn.

Others understand the problem because they, too, have experienced it and exert commendable patience and silence.

This confusion does not contribute to the emotional stability of the driver. If he is the harassed father, he'll probably blow his top before the day is over and convince his wife that he is too emotionally unstable to be around children.

Another irritation are signs pointing to the next city down the road in lieu of a highway numeral marker. These are fine for the one per cent of the travelers who are going to that particular city but they are meaningless to those who have destinations beyond and couldn't care less about what lies in between.

The federal government is doing a fine job insisting on uniformity in the sign language on interstate highways and other highways built with federal financial assistance.

But it isn't nearly enough.

Along with safer cars, better engineered roads, more efficient gasoline, better oil and longer mileage tires why can't there be road signs motorists can read and understand?

But please don't let the natives place them.

FCC's IDEA OF "FAIRNESS"

The Federal Communication Commission has ruled that under its doctrine of "fairness" antismoking messages must be aired by radio and television stations that broadcast cigarette commercials. This is an absurd extension of the equal time practice.

Its absurdity is noted by Broadcasting magazine which quotes an official of the Women's Christian Temperance Union as saying she is thinking of petitioning for the same privilege to answer wine and beer advertising.

The magazine also quotes an advertising agency official as saying: "The decision opens the door for requests from groups opposing automobiles, because they might be unsafe; food products, because they have high cholesterol counts; fluoride toothpastes, because some groups think they are harmful; sun lamps because they may cause skin cancer; and beer and wine because inebriation causes auto accidents and violence.

It could be added that proponents of gas heating for households might seek the right of free reply to the promoters of oil burners; and why shouldn't railroads and steamships seek free time to rebut the claims of airlines?

The possibility that the FCC ruling, if it is pursued, might drive millions of dollars of advertising from broadcasting into print media should be of little solace to newspapers and magazines. If the practice is upheld in broadcasting, sooner or later someone will try to apply the same reasoning to print.

There is only one simple rule that should apply to advertising in any medium: Anything that can be sold to the consumer legally should have the right to be offered to the consumer through honest and truthful advertising - Editor and Publisher

Representative George W. Parker says "Missouri's legislature suffers from lack of time, lack of help and lack of pay" to get its job done.

We disagree with the good fellow. They have plenty of time if they would stay on the job more than three days a week. They have just taken care of the pay problem with a salary of $7,200.00 for six-month's work every two years and an extra $10.00 per day if they answer the first roll call plus mileage for the trip back home. The help problem could be solved if all the help on the payroll was made to work in Jefferson City instead of not being on the job.

At least thats the way this editor sees it.

Here is a sad tale which sounds like fiction. Actually, it is a true story, repeated hundreds of times each year.

Sam Jones' sales were lagging. Then he heard of a tremendous bargain in refrigerators he could pass on to his customers.

He quickly stepped up operations to get them all on his showroom floor before morning.

Most of Sam's customers had been shopping across the street lately, and he couldn't understand why. "What does Jim Gulch have to offer them that I don't?" he asked himself.

Now he would show his customers a real bargain! Gulch would really be mad when he watched all his new customers shop across the street again. He smiled to himself in anticipated satisfaction.

The next morning Sam opened his store an hour early. His salesmen were extra sharp as they stood waiting for the crowd. And there they stood, waiting and waiting and waiting. No one entered the store.

Sam glumly stood at the door and stared across the street. Why just look at the customers in Gulch's store! How in the world did Gulch do it?

Stepping across the street, Sam tapped a man on the shoulder. "Pardon me, but what do you have in your hand?" he asked. "Why, it's a newspaper ad," the man replied. "Haven't you heard? Mr. Gulch has all the latest models at the best price; everyone knows about his sale."

Sam had learned the basic lesson of selling. No one can buy the best or cheapest mousetrap in the world until he learns where it is sold.

NEW SEA DIVER FOR NAVY

The Miami Seaquarium is training eight porpoises as sea messengers for the Navy.

Burton Clark, the Seaquarium's general manager, said recently that the porpoises were being schooled under a Navy contract for use in the Sealab 3 research project. The Seaquarium is a tourist attraction that highlights performing porpoises. It also engages in scientific ventures related to its various marine exhibits.

Mr. Clark said the porpoises were to be used as messengers between the ocean surface and an underwater research station 400 feet deep in the Pacific Ocean off Point Magu, Calif. They carry written messages clipped to a leather harness.

A male porpoise was used for courier duty in the successful Sealab 2 project. The mammal responded to buzzers sounded by scientists stationed at a 200-foot depth.

CANT SPEL?
BLAME GENES

Dr. Steven G. Vandenberg of the University of Louisville School of Medicine has examined native abilities. He found that the mental abilities most influenced by heredity are: 1. spatial visualization, the ability to picture patterns and structures in the mind; 2. word fluency, the ability to think of words and use them easily in talking or writing; 3. numerical ability.

Parents who have had trouble with arithmetic and spelling are likely to pass on that deficiency to their children, the Catholic Digest finds. On the other hand, abilities to reason and remember are not as strongly influenced by heredity, and training can improve skill. Dr. Vandenberg is cautious about the meaning of the word inherited. He says it is not so much the qualities themselves but the potentiality for developing them that is inherited.

COMPUTING OUR VOTES

It is increasingly evident that politicians are letting computers do much of their thinking for them. Fed raw materials in the form of public opinion polls, the electronic brains meditate electronically, then tell the politicos what we voters are likely to want in the way of brad and circuses and various kinds of benefits -- unemployment, medical, old age, fringe, poverty, etc.

The politicians, being politicians, go all out to oblige. Which explains such slogans as "Vote for Glutz Because Glutz Can Do More For You." Or, "Elect Glatz Because Glatz Can Get It For You."

Both parties, and some of our most celebrates individual politicians, make extensive use of computers. The Kennedys obviously have great faith in them, and the famed LBJ census is not arrived at by ouija board.

The operation is pretty impressive when you stop to think about it. Consider all the conflicting demands, from people who pay taxes and from those who want that tax money. And that's the main thing to consider, because nowadays that kind of put and take is the warp and woof of politics.

There's just one thing lacking. So far we haven't heard of any computer which takes into account certain basic principles -- such as patriotism, honesty, and love of God. Or, for that matter, the widely held belief that we have a pretty good system going here, and one that is not likely to be improved by injections of socialism or communism. Nor, so far as we know, does any computer record the fact that most of us still feel that we ought to be able to run our country without advance and consent from the international set in evidence at the UN and elsewhere.

A properly programmed computer would show that most Americans subscribe to MacArthur's dictum: "There is no substitute for victory." It would show, too, that Berkeley, New Haven, Greenwich Village and a few other noisy hot spots are not taken as seriosly by Americans as they are by certain equally noisy politicians.

Someday, no doubt, a computer will be produced which can evaluate all of these things, too. Meanwhile, the politician who ignores them does so at his own risk.

And meanwhile, too, we don't like the idea of having our vote computed until we have cast it. The computer may be accurate in reporting that there are more people who want to receive largess from the treasury than want to pay taxes into the treasury. Indeed, the computer may be right every day of the year -- except election day.

HEALTH PLAN:
SOVIET STYLE

Those who advocate that Americans emulate the Soviet system of health care should be interested in the following words from the "worker's paradise".

Izvestia, the Moscow newspaper, recently reported receipt of a letter from a lady pleading, "Help me to see!" The woman had undergone a successful cataract removal, but needed special glasses.

Izvestia noted that for more than a month, "the optical production section of the Pharmaceutical Administration of the Executive Committee of the Moscow City Society of Working People's Deputies" had been reporting that the lady's order was "being filled."

Then Izvestia editorialized: "Buying prescription lenses is a problem for thousands of our people. Dozens of organizations are involved in making them, not one of which is fully responsible. The crux of the matter is that there is no single responsible bureau. The Central Administration for Medical Equipment in the Ministry of Health of the U.S.S.R. plans the production of lenses and frames for the whole nation, and regional economic councils 'adapt' this plan to local needs.

"There are four semi-domestic enterprises in the Russian Republic capable of making prescription lenses. But A.M. Yevgenyev, chief of one of them, is nagged by hundreds of telephone calls and letters from indignant customers. But he cannot help his patients: his shops, which have to serve almost the entire country, can't even meet Moscow's demand. On March 11 they refused to accept new orders so as to 'digest' those already in hand. It is intolerable that there isn't a single optical shop in 29 regional and district centers of the Russian Republic. People have to travel hundreds of miles to the capital to order eyeglasses."

This is government "care" action at its extreme.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The backstage maneuvering to stage a summit conference between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin began over a week ago, when Johnson commissioned Llewellyn Thompson, the U.S. Ambassador to Moscow, now home on leave, to get in touch with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who had just returned from Moscow. The two men are good friends, and Johnson asked them to discuss an agenda for a summit meeting.

LBJ remembered how Premier Khrushchev had come to the United Nations in 1960 and how, despite a previous friendly conversation between Khrushchev and Eisenhower at Camp David, the two did not see each other during the U.N. meeting and relations between Russia and the United States rapidly deteriorated thereafter.

President Johnson, therefore, abruptly cancelled his plans to entertain Prime Minister Hold of Australia at the LBJ ranch and asked Holt to meet him at Camp David instead. He flew back to Washington from a fund-raising dinner in Austin and sent some of his staff up to Camp David to prepare for the Australian's entertainment and later possibly Kosygin's.

What Johnson particularly wanted was to talk to Kosygin about the Vietnam war, and the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, by which Russia and the United States hope to persuade the rest of the world to check the spread of A-bombs. LBJ suggested to Ambassador Thompson, therefore, that the agenda be wide open to include not merely the Middle East but these other subjects.

However, after the Soviet delegation got under way from Moscow it was learned that although 60 Russians accompanied Kosygin there was not one Far East expert in the lot. This meant that Kosygin probably did not want to discuss Vietnam.

KOSYGIN'S COOLNESS

Also it developed that Kosygin was quite cool toward a meeting with Johnson and flatly refused to come to Washington.

Behind the coolness was the fact that the Russians were already in the bad graces of the Arabs. The Arabs had expected the Russian air force to intervene on their side in the war with Israel.

It's now learned that Nasser deliberately put out the "big lie" story of American and British planes supporting Israel in order to force the Russians to intervene. Instead ambassador Demitri Pogadaiev in Cairo informed Nasser in no uncertain terms that American planes were not participating in the war. He said that Soviet radar had been keeping a close watch on the Sixth Fleet and that not one American plane had gone near the battlefield.

It was learned later that Premier Kosygin was furious with Nasser for claiming he had been attacked by the American air force. The Arabs in turn were furious with the Russians, and appear still to be furious. It was to appease the Arabs that Kosygin called the U.N. General Assembly meeting.

American intelligence has been so carefully tuned in on Soviet messages exchanged between the Near East and Moscow that the state department learned only two hours after Israel had pounded the Arab air bases that the Russians considered the war as good as over. Even during the height of the fighting, the Kremlin began mapping its post-war diplomatic strategy.

All this is why Kosygin was not too enthusiastic about seeing Johnson. It would look as if the United States and Russia were conspiring together, and any move made by the United States is suspect by the Arab world today.

As a gesture to Kosygin, President Johnson went so far as to order the Pentagon to release new information on the air force strafing a Soviet vessel, the "Turkestan." Originally the air force claimed no American planes had gone near the Turkestan; but additional information indicated that we were wrong, and LBJ ordered the error made public immediately.

NOTE: Both the White House and the state department were concerned that Premier Kosygin not fail too badly at the U.N. It was feared that Moscow, if Kosygin did fail, would be compelled to take more drastic action to restore Russian prestige in Arab eyes.

NEGRO MUSEUM

There are many American museums displaying the cultural background of the Indian, but nothing substantial has been done in this field for the American Negro, though he represents 10 per cent of the population.

Young Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., has sponsored a bill to fill this need. It would create a commission of leading scholars to look into the establishment of a national museum of Negro history. Scheuer believes such a project would give Negro citizens a better sense of self-esteem.

What few people know is that the Negro has played a vital role in American history. While George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington are well known, others such as Chrispus Attucks, the first man to fall in the Boston Massacre, and Dr. Charles Drew, a pioneer in the development of blood plasma, are not.

Also, Matthew Hanson was the co-discoverer of the North Pole, preceding Perry by 45 minutes; Jean Du Sable is recognized by many historians as the first settler in Chicago; and Jan Matzeliger is the inventor of the shoe last, which revolutionized the shoe industry.

Rep. Scheuer wants to improve the "pride and self-image of Negro Americans by developing a better understanding of their past."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's National Political Strategists Launch '68 Campaign; Warn Union Leaders Not to Harass Lyndon Johnson

Washington, D.C.: -- The presidential campaign is on. Word has been dispatched to national labor leaders by their central headquarters here -- in a set of confidential position papers -- that it is later than they think and not as certain as they believe it to be that they will defeat the Republican nominee.

In these documents is the blunt warning against taking continuous political pot shots at President Johnson.

"Accepting the almost inevitable circumstance that the AFL-CIO will be supporting President Johnson in 1968 we are already moving to put muscle into that support. . ."

Then the "leadership (of American labor) is urged to forgo the luxury of criticizing the administration on relatively minor matters."

The warning then says bluntly: "There is a lesson here in the 1966 defeat of Gov. Brown of California. Many of our people were in the absurd position of urging all-out support for a candidate (Brown), the object of years of petty fault finding."

These white papers were prepared for labor's high command by some of the AFL-CIO's most astute political infighters. They're worried, though the polls show an increase in the President's popularity.

Their leader, George Meany, who now has greater access to the White House than any man in Washington, is personally dedicated to the President's re-election. So much so that, when in the past two years he has mused with friends about resigning, he has qualified his whimsy with the assertion that he wants to fight through '68 at the side of Lyndon Johnson. And Meany has a whim of iron.

Labor's political strategists don't fret easily. They know their own strength. But they realize, too, what is cutting in on their influence with the millions they lead. They know, for example, that many Republican governors and new senators are remaking the Republican image among the new millions in labor.

Not too long ago they were startled to see Sen. Percy talk to the Senate about Walter Reuther as though the auto union chief was a political blood brother. Percy took excerpts from the publication of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Dept. and then added: "No amount of paraphrasing on my part could substitute for the eloquent testimony of Mr. Reuther."

And such governors as Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, Raymond Shafer and Minnesota's Harold LeVander have been "dialogue-ing" with labor -- in some instances appointing them to state boards.

This doesn't exactly give the Republicans the proletarian cartoonist's image of the big-bellied capitalists with dollar signs on their white vests. Add to all this the barnstorming of Sen. Hatfield, a familiar face at union meetings, be they on the waterfront or in steel union halls, and the quiet liaison of Sen. Brooke and some unions and one gets a swift view of what is disturbing the dynamists of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE).

Not the least of COPE's concern is the beardless youth -- 26 million of whom will begin voting between the end of 1967 and 1972. Secret COPE polls have disclosed that the younger people, in and out of labor (and the outsiders worry COPE's strategists just as much as their own members), are "not with it." Certainly they have only slight identity with the veterans of the ancient struggles on turbulent picket lines. The newcomers are a status-conscious, tax-conscious, race-conscious "work class" not eager to carry that label. So COPE has sent its strategists over to the AFL-CIO Educational Dept. for at least two meetings. National labor leaders were included there as well as at a March 22nd skull session in Chicago on how to get the young.

There are meetings galore -- with Democratic Senators who won last time and those who lost and those who fear losing, such as Idaho's Frank Church, Indiana's Birch Bayh, and Wisconsin's Gaylord Nelson.

And, says COPE, in these documents: "recognizing that, in spite of our bipartisan posture, a preponderance of endorsed candidates in 1968 will be Democrats, we are working to fortify our relationship with national party organizations. . .

"We are holding meetings at which the incumbents and labor and party people can plan together."

They're wise men, these strategists. It's only 16 campaigning months to election day.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

LET'S BE CORRECT

THE TIME may have arrived when the American people should quit trying to be so puppy-dog friendly to the world and assume a more dignified posture of "correctness."

Americans are, perhaps, the friendliest people on earth. Part of it comes from our bigness and isolation. At home we see few foreigners. An alien accent intrigues us. In any erudite cocktail party the crowd is generally thickest around the foreign visitor.

We have, for a long time, suffered from a missionary guilt complex. It's an interesting combination of smugness and concern. We are proud of the "American Way." We feel sure that our outlooks and techniques are superior to those of most other countries. We would like to share our wisdom. Hence, the missionary. On the other hand, we are easily guilt-ridden because of our relative opulence. So we give, often lavishly.

OUR BRITISH cousins in their great days were somewhat like us, but not much. They were eloquently and sometimes arrogantly proud of the Empire. They wept a little for the heathen. They had their heroic missionaries and teachers who went forth into the pools of ignorance and fever to discourage infanticide, stop cannibalism and outlaw suttee. But hard on their heels came the flag and the traders.

As the Basuto chief bitterly told one of my old anthropology professors: "When the white man came here he had the Bible and we had the land. Now we've got the Bible and he's got the land."

Among the more recent colonial powers you might classify, in descending order of humanity, the French, the Dutch, the Belgians, the Germans and the Japanese. The Russians were never well enough organized in the 18th and 19th centuries to seize distant lands from primitive peoples. But in their conquest and treatment of the European satellites they would go to the bottom of the list.

Only the Americans were haunted by their strength and nervous about their prosperity. Only the Americans set forth wistfully to make the world love them.

FUNNY THING. The Israelis bombed a U.N. force in the Gaza Strip and nine Indian and two Brazilian soldiers were killed. The diplomats in the U. N. Security Council all tried to top each other in expressions of regret and grief. But 54,000 Americans died in what was billed as an official U.N. action in Korea. How much weeping did the United Nations do for our boys?

There is the human inclination to make the friend of your enemy your enemy. All our largesse to India was forgotten the moment we gave arms to Pakistan. And the Pakistanis damned us for our aid to India.

FOR MANY years Americans tried to make themselves loved in the Near East. The American University in Beirut has educated generations of Arab leaders. We are lavish with Fulbright scholarships. We poured tremendous aid funds into Arab nations, including those whose oil-rich sheiks bought Cadillacs by the shipload and rented whole hotels in Switzerland.

But because America had promoted Israel we were hated. And when Gamal Abdel Nasser, in the bleak early hours of June 6, tried to alibi the collapse of his air force by claiming that American and British planes had shot it down, the whole Near East bought it immediately. Mobs converged on the American Embassies. The American libraries went up in flames. Arab nation after Arab nation, whose leaders must have known better, severed relations with thunderous anger. In a few hours we became the official scapegoat of all the snafued Arab world.

MAYBE WE ought to relax. Maybe we should quit trying to be loved. Maybe we should assume that we will be spit on. America is a complacent dragon, a fine beast on which to beat with wooden swords and have one's picture taken standing on its back. Hatred of it is a huge convience for the government which is entangled in its own stupidity.

So be it. If we expect to be hated we will be freer to do intelligent things. We won't have to keep shoring up corrupt regimes in the hope that they will become reliable friends. We can spend our foreign aid more wisely. We can seal off some famous rat holes.

WE CAN say, "Look, your excellency. Your mob burnt our free library, which happens to be the biggest and best in your country. If you want it back, jail the leaders and build us a building. We'll just replace the books."

Or, "See here, your highness. We figure you'll gut us the first time it's convenient, but in the meantime we'd like to help your people. If you've got a sound plan and a way to keep your gang from cracking the safe we may bank - roll it."

This kind of talk will make more sense to more people than our past habit of turning the other cheek with a sickly grin. Everybody's pal -- hell! It just didn't work. Let's be stiffly correct for a change, and maybe they'll conclude we're not so crazy after all.

Airline Asks for Probe

BLOSSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The president of Mohawk Airlines has asked FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to investigate a "strong suggestion of sabotage" in the crash of a jetliner Friday that killed 34 persons near here.

In a telegram to Hoover Friday night, Robert E. Peach, Mohawk president, said "evidence has developed in course of notification of next of kin of crash victims which leads to strong suggestion of sabotage."

He did not give any details of the evidence.

In Washington, the FBI said it had no determination of the cause of the accident and no evidence of sabotage which would justify its entering the investigation as yet. FBI experts were on the scene to help identify the victims and were keeping in touch with local and federal aviation authorities, a spokesman said.

The plane — a BAC111 on Flight 40 bound from Syracuse, N.Y., to Washington, D.C. — plunged in a ball of flames onto Blossburg Mountain in north-central Pennsylvania at 2:50 p.m., shortly after it took off in overcast from Elmira, N.Y.

Investigators from several federal agencies, local authorities and state police met this morning to coordinate their investigations, which one spokesman said probably would take a week to 10 days.

Witnesses said the wreckage was scattered over a wide area and that nearly all the bodies were mutilated and dismembered.

"I was in World War II and I never saw anything like that," said Raymond Smith, 48, who visited the scene.

Before Peach sent his telegram, a Mohawk spokesman said the FBI was routinely investigating any possibility of sabotage. FBI agents also were sent to the scene to help identify victims, and the National Transportation Safety Board, a newly established unit in the Department of Transportation, sent investigators.

Former Maine Gov. John H. Reed, a member of the board, said Friday night the airplane's flight recorder tape had been found, intact and would be sent to Washington for analysis.

He said investigators had heard reports of a bomb but that there was "no evidence to that effect, which has come to our attention at this moment."

Residents of Blossburg, a town of 1,956, about 30 miles south of Corning, N.Y., said they could tell the airliner was in trouble as it flew over.

"It sounded like the engine kept cutting out," one man said.

Blossburg postmaster Louis Schultz said he saw the plane's left wing on fire and pieces of debris falling off.

"It was making a noise like a whistle," he said. "It was just like a toy going down — going down sideways."

Schultz later visited the crash scene and said the fuselage was gone, "just as if someone had stuck some dynamite in the center and blew it to pieces."

Witnesses said the plane came down on a flat area of the mountain top.

A temporary morgue was established in the Blossburg fire hall, but some observers said identification would be an "almost impossible job." In addition to the FBI crew, pathologists and dentists were called to aid in identification.

The pilot was identified as Capt. Charles Bullock, 44, of Cazenovia, N.Y., who had been with Mohawk nearly 15 years.

HOLDING A CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL has been presented posthumously to James R. Layne, for rescuing Richard Hockersmith, six, from drowning July 4. Layne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne of Diehlstadt hold the award.

Laynes Receive Hero Medal

BY LEO SCHADE

DIEHLSTADT -- Mr. and Mrs. T. Lee Layne rural route, have received a Carnegie hero medal awarded posthumously to their son, James Randolph Layne, 17, who drowned after he pulled six-year-old Richard Hockersmith of East Prairie to safety.

The rescue followed a boating accident on chute seven at Dorena in the Mississippi River July 4.

The medal, four inches in diameter, encased in a two-inch transparent case, is inscribed:

"James Randolph Layne, who died helping to save Richard L. Hockersmith from drowning, Dorena. Mo., July 4, 1966."

Surrounding the inscription is the verse:

"Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The front side of the bronze mounted trophy is a picture of Andrew Carnegie, founder of the Hero Fund, established in 1906.

The Laynes previously received a $500 scholarship fund last month. This has been placed with funds for their daughter, Vicki, 13.

A Carnegie Medal also was given to Miss Marie Sorrells, 18, Owosso, Mich., a girl companion of James Layne, who brought Hockersmith to shore after young Layne initiated the rescue effort. She also received a $500 scholarship fund.

The Layne family received a copy of Missouri House resolution 174, commemorating the bravery of Layne.

The official presentation of the medal will be made to the family by the Kiwanis club of Charleston, which reported the rescue to the Carnegie Hero Fund.

Young Layne was a junior at Charleston high school and was an expert mechanic. He and Miss Sorrels had gone to the river to swim. After arrival, a small boat carrying Emro Hockersmith and three of his children, sank. They were going to an island for a picnic.

The father brought daughter, Susan, five and son, James, eight, to safety.

Richard Hockersmith, seven, became separated from the family and was unable to swim. Layne rescued the boy in 18 feet of water bringing him safely to more shallow depths.

Twenty or more adults and children were on the shore.

Richard Hockersmith, six, seated at left, was rescued by James R. Layne, 17, Diehlstadt, who lost his own life in bringing him to safety. Tornado Kills One, Injures 14

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)— One person died and at least 14 were hospitalized as a tornado slashed through Garden City and its farm area Friday night.

Civil Defense headquarters said 125 homes sustained major damage, and several hundred others had lesser damage. The survey was made for Civil Defense by Richard Rohleder, assistant police chief.

The storm moved from west to east across the north part of the city.

Mrs. Mamie Largent, 66, died in St. Catherine's hospital about 30 minutes after she was brought in from her farm home three miles northeast of town where she was caught by the twister.

Hospital attendants said one woman suffered a broken hip and at least two had broken arms. Most were treated for shock and minor injuries. Many received first-aid from rescue workers.

Among those taken to the hospital were a number of patients of the Briar Hill nursing home, which was damaged.

Victims left homeless were given shelter in the Methodist Church and the National Guard armory.

A new grade school in the northeast section, which is to be opened in the fall, lost its gym roof. Another grade school had a pole rammed through the west side of the building, and an annex—a steel structure — was demolished.

The high school stadium's press box was ripped away.

The office of Gov. Robert Docking in Topeka said it had sent Robert C. Harder, director of the state's technical assistance program, to Garden City to help with rehabilitation. National Guard units also were being alerted to help in the stricken area, the governor's office said.

Most of the heavy damage to homes occurred in the Briar Hill area in the northeast residential area.

Garden City has a population of about 14,000. It is located in the southwest part of the state, about 65 miles from the Colorado and Oklahoma lines.

Weather instruments at radio station KIUL measured the winds at 62 miles an hour. Power lines were down and telephone service disrupted. Many downtown store fronts were shattered and heavy tree damage was reported. The highway patrol's radio system was knocked out.

There had been some wind from the north and the air was brown with dust just before 9 p.m., but skies in the west were clear. About 8:55 p.m. there was a sprinkle of rain.

"There was a little whirlwind and then everything started blowing," said Kim Wells, a newsman for KIUL.

Bill Brown, editor of the Garden City Telegram, said he was attending a concert in Stevens Park near the downtown area. As the storm brewed, he dashed for his home in the northeast part of town.

"I just reached the house when my wife yelled for me to head for the basement," Brown said. "We crawled under a pool table...just then the roof gave in."

Brown, his wife, Lois, and 14-year-old daughter, Kathy, were uninjured. A son, David, 16, was not at home but was in no danger, Brown said.

"There wasn't much rain, a little hail," Brown said. "I thought it was all over and started to leave when it seemed to hit again. A beam fell down and I went back to the pool table."

Andy Erhart, superintendent of the Garden City Experiment Station, about two miles northeast of the city, said all the farm's outbuildings were lost. He and Mrs. Erhart and their 15-year-old son, Dana, were in the basement. Part of their home's roof and the windows were destroyed.

"We were lucky," Erhart said.

The Dodge City weather bureau said a number of funnel clouds were reported as the storm system moved east. None except the one at Garden City apparently touched down, the bureau said.

Visitor Loses TravelersChecks

Geraldine Henley, Brookport, Ill., reported to the police that she had lost her purse enroute from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to the Holiday Inn here.

The purse contained $150 in travelers checks and identification cards.

Hands, Fingers Fare Badly

Three were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Friday:

Mark Fausett, 245 East Gladys St., cut left little finger on fish bowl; Beverly June Patterson, route two, injured in car accident at the corner of Ralph and Betty streets and Amy Coleman, route two, caught left hand in fan.

More Rain Falls On Flood Areas

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Heavy rains hit Eastern Kansas and Western and Central Missouri today, posing more troubles for those battling flood waters on the Missouri River and its tributaries.

Some of the rains along the Missouri tributaries were over an inch, the south part of Kansas City reporting 1.24.

Army Engineer workers, volunteers and convicts from the Missouri penitentiary still were battling to keep the levees intact along the Big Muddy. Already 2ll private levees from Rulo, Neb., to the Mississippi have been reached.

Army Unit Ambushed

SAIGON (AP) — An American infantry company on a search-and-destroy mission was caught in a deadly crossfire of North Vietnamese automatic weapons and small arms and lost 76 killed and 24 wounded high in the central highlands, the U.S. Command disclosed today.

The bloody action near Dak To, 270 miles north of Saigon, took place Thursday, the command said, but the news was held up for "security reasons."

The badly mauled company of perhaps 150 men was part of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, the first Army combat unit to arrive in Vietnam, in May 1965. The company included many newcomers sent in as replacements for men rotated out of South Vietnam. It had been looking for the enemy since last Sunday but had had no contact until the surprise Red assault Thursday.

Shot Fired In Sunset

Police were called to Sunset addition early today, when Jerry D. Jackson, 306 Sunset Drive, informed them that a shot from a .22 caliber rifle had been fired by George D. Robertson.

The two had argued. Jackson and a woman friend were walking between Felker and Petty streets when the shot was fired. Jackson claimed the bullet came close enough to tear his clothing and burned his skin.

No charges were filed.

Legal Fees in Poverty Battle Run to $1,700

PORTAGEVILLE - The recent power struggle within the War on Poverty in Southeast Missouri might not have only been costly in the long range possibility of losing future OEO programs-- it cost $1,700 for DAEOC to conduct its battle.

Information leaked out of the DAEOC organization this week that attorney fees in the move to dismiss Lloyd Phillips and William Graves came to about $1,700.

The "bill" from Don Dickerson, a Cape Girardeau attorney, was received recently in the Portageville office. His legal fees and expenses came to the $1,700.

Dickerson was "hired" by members of the DAEOC organization in March shortly after the struggle for control of the poverty program was renewed. During the conflict one of his first pieces of legal advice involved the seating of a delegation from Pemiscot County who had been challenged.

As the controversy grew over the dismissal of Phillips and Graves, Dickerson was repeatedly called on for "legal advice" in regard to the position of these two men.

The Cape Girardeau lawyer was also retained to represent DAEOC in the controversy with the regional headquarters of the Office of Economic Opportunity in Kansas City.

On numerous occasions Dickerson's advice was referred to in DAEOC minutes and statements sent out by the DAEOC office in Portageville.

It was brought out this week, after the word of Dickerson's fees had leaked out, that OEO regulations allow only $50 per day for consultant's fees and does not allow any special fee for an attorney. Consultants are normally hired on a "contract" basis, though written contracts are not routine. If paid as a consultant this would mean 34 days service by the lawyer.

OEO policy also requires documentation for expenditures in the form of consultants fees. It was reported that such documentation was being prepared last week.

The new executive director of DAEOC, A. W. Wright, said Wednesday that to the best of his knowledge the lawyer's fees, in round numbers, came to about $1,600.

He said they were all documented by Dickerson, with each figure being explained in the bill.

Wright, without referring to problems of the past within DAEOC, said things appear to be smoothing out and that DAEOC needs and he hopes will get the help of the press, the public and these people working within the program.

He also stated that the organization hopes to launch an information program to keep the public informed of what DAEOC is doing. Not being critical of any past operations, Wright said he feels that keeping the public informed is one of the most important functions that must be carried out in this type of a program.

Summit Talks Produce Air Of Optimism

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — American diplomats mixed optimism with caution today over prospects that two summit meetings at Glassboro will open the way toward solving major international issues. The fact that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met for five hours Friday, including three hours with no aides except interpreters— then agreed on another parley Sunday— was in itself regarded as a good omen.

Announcement of the follow-up session Sunday afternoon came as a surprise to the array of experts who figured the Friday meeting could only be a token one at best, considering how much difficulty the chiefs had all week over whether or where to get together.

As it turned out their first session at Hollybush, the brownstone residence of the Glassboro State College president, began with a handshake and ended with Johnson and Kosygin smilingly facing newsmen and a cheering crowd.

Kosygin concurred with Johnson's statement that their talks ranged over such issues as the Middle East crisis and Vietnam and that "we agreed it is now very important to reach international agreement on a non-proliferation treaty."

Presidential press secretary George Christian said the two leaders developed an understanding on the central question in the Middle East dispute— that "Israel does, of course, exist as a nation"— although they disagreed on other points.

Christian said Johnson hopes for a consensus on the other Middle East issues. He also reported that Secretary of State Dean Rusk, assigned to meet next week with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, is optimistic about chances for U.S.-Soviet concurrence on the draft of a proposed treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons.

The two private meetings by the chiefs plus the business lunch attended by their top advisers at the tree-shaded campus site Friday produced a sudden improvement in the tone of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Since Kosygin's arrival in New York a week ago for the U.S.-opposed U.N. General Assembly special session on the Middle East, the atmosphere had soured amid his public denunciation of American as well as Israeli policy and the arguments over a summit meeting.

But after the Glassboro parley, Johnson hailed "the spirit of Hollybush." He told a Democratic group in Los Angeles that this is the spirit of "reasoning together."

Johnson declared that he and Kosygin had agreed they both want "a world of peace for our grandchildren."

But the President added a note of caution that "deep and serious differences" remain. "One meeting does not make a peace," he said.

"We reached no new agreements— that does not happen in a single conversation— but I think we understand each other better," he said.

Woman Found Unconscious

DEXTER - Bernice Malone, 40, was injured in a one-car accident when her car ran off a gravel road and into a ditch three miles south of Dexter last night.

She was taken, unconscious, to Lucy Lee hospital at Poplar Bluff, where she is reported in critical condition.

The highway patrol said she might have suffered a heart attack since damage to her car was slight. She was found by a passing motorist.

FOR TIMES OF WEARINESS

How many times, is couraged

How many times, discouraged by a gray
Enveloping of weariness, we say,
"The roads of need are long, the vales are deep.
Lord, why must precious hours be spent in sleep?"
But oh, the floried comforting, that He
Who never wearies, who is ever free
From prisoning of time, well understands
That we would minister with hearts and hands
In wider - reaching service if we could!
What shining joy to realize that God
Can touch the humblest deed, the lowliest word,
And multiply its power to heal and bless
Beyond what we could ever drean or guess!

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Now that the federal government has saved the American people from themselves in establishing uniform time during the summer it should try its hand in hoisting uniform highway signs.

The signs that are placed on the nation's streets and highways were not put there by through travelers unfamiliar with the thoroughfares.

If they had been they never would have been there.

Driving through Kansas City the motorist may be following a highway number west into Kansas.

He probably won't get there the first time.

He'll come to a sign and an arrow pointing to Kansas City, Kan.

That's where he should turn but he will learn that too late.

Highway numbers while plentiful outside a city may disappear in the business section or the motorist may be in a center lane with his view obscured by a truck in an outer lane. He easily can miss a turn.

In some states it is the practice to put highway turn signs on the turn corner. Other states let the motorists get accustomed to the idea gradually. The motorist passes several intersections but he is supposed to know exactly where to turn.

He often doesn't and may find himself several miles off the route before he makes the discovery that he guessed wrong.

A whole book could be written about highways bearing the same number which bend or go in one or more different directions in a city.

Miles of travel have been wasted by motorists who thought they were going in one direction toward a destination only to find that they were traveling the same highway in the opposite direction toward another destination.

A truck parked at a curb in the business section can eliminate a turn sign for all practical purposes. So can street decorations or merchant advertising signs unless they are carefully placed with loving consideration for strangers in town.

There is no evidence to support an argument which might be made that bewildered motorists hunting for road signs cause accidents. They do create impatience in motorists who are familiar with the territory and know where they are going. They also know how to use a horn.

Others understand the problem because they, too, have experienced it and exert commendable patience and silence.

This confusion does not contribute to the emotional stability of the driver. If he is the harassed father, he'll probably blow his top before the day is over and convince his wife that he is too emotionally unstable to be around children.

Another irritation are signs pointing to the next city down the road in lieu of a highway numeral marker. These are fine for the one per cent of the travelers who are going to that particular city but they are meaningless to those who have destinations beyond and couldn't care less about what lies in between.

The federal government is doing a fine job insisting on uniformity in the sign language on interstate highways and other highways built with federal financial assistance.

But it isn't nearly enough.

Along with safer cars, better engineered roads, more efficient gasoline, better oil and longer mileage tires why can't there be road signs motorists can read and understand?

But please don't let the natives place them.

FCC's IDEA OF "FAIRNESS"

The Federal Communication Commission has ruled that under its doctrine of "fairness" antismoking messages must be aired by radio and television stations that broadcast cigarette commercials. This is an absurd extension of the equal time practice.

Its absurdity is noted by Broadcasting magazine which quotes an official of the Women's Christian Temperance Union as saying she is thinking of petitioning for the same privilege to answer wine and beer advertising.

The magazine also quotes an advertising agency official as saying: "The decision opens the door for requests from groups opposing automobiles, because they might be unsafe; food products, because they have high cholesterol counts; fluoride toothpastes, because some groups think they are harmful; sun lamps because they may cause skin cancer; and beer and wine because inebriation causes auto accidents and violence.

It could be added that proponents of gas heating for households might seek the right of free reply to the promoters of oil burners; and why shouldn't railroads and steamships seek free time to rebut the claims of airlines?

The possibility that the FCC ruling, if it is pursued, might drive millions of dollars of advertising from broadcasting into print media should be of little solace to newspapers and magazines. If the practice is upheld in broadcasting, sooner or later someone will try to apply the same reasoning to print.

There is only one simple rule that should apply to advertising in any medium: Anything that can be sold to the consumer legally should have the right to be offered to the consumer through honest and truthful advertising - Editor and Publisher

Representative George W. Parker says "Missouri's legislature suffers from lack of time, lack of help and lack of pay" to get its job done.

We disagree with the good fellow. They have plenty of time if they would stay on the job more than three days a week. They have just taken care of the pay problem with a salary of $7,200.00 for six-month's work every two years and an extra $10.00 per day if they answer the first roll call plus mileage for the trip back home. The help problem could be solved if all the help on the payroll was made to work in Jefferson City instead of not being on the job.

At least thats the way this editor sees it.

Here is a sad tale which sounds like fiction. Actually, it is a true story, repeated hundreds of times each year.

Sam Jones' sales were lagging. Then he heard of a tremendous bargain in refrigerators he could pass on to his customers.

He quickly stepped up operations to get them all on his showroom floor before morning.

Most of Sam's customers had been shopping across the street lately, and he couldn't understand why. "What does Jim Gulch have to offer them that I don't?" he asked himself.

Now he would show his customers a real bargain! Gulch would really be mad when he watched all his new customers shop across the street again. He smiled to himself in anticipated satisfaction.

The next morning Sam opened his store an hour early. His salesmen were extra sharp as they stood waiting for the crowd. And there they stood, waiting and waiting and waiting. No one entered the store.

Sam glumly stood at the door and stared across the street. Why just look at the customers in Gulch's store! How in the world did Gulch do it?

Stepping across the street, Sam tapped a man on the shoulder. "Pardon me, but what do you have in your hand?" he asked. "Why, it's a newspaper ad," the man replied. "Haven't you heard? Mr. Gulch has all the latest models at the best price; everyone knows about his sale."

Sam had learned the basic lesson of selling. No one can buy the best or cheapest mousetrap in the world until he learns where it is sold.

NEW SEA DIVER FOR NAVY

The Miami Seaquarium is training eight porpoises as sea messengers for the Navy.

Burton Clark, the Seaquarium's general manager, said recently that the porpoises were being schooled under a Navy contract for use in the Sealab 3 research project. The Seaquarium is a tourist attraction that highlights performing porpoises. It also engages in scientific ventures related to its various marine exhibits.

Mr. Clark said the porpoises were to be used as messengers between the ocean surface and an underwater research station 400 feet deep in the Pacific Ocean off Point Magu, Calif. They carry written messages clipped to a leather harness.

A male porpoise was used for courier duty in the successful Sealab 2 project. The mammal responded to buzzers sounded by scientists stationed at a 200-foot depth.

CANT SPEL?
BLAME GENES

Dr. Steven G. Vandenberg of the University of Louisville School of Medicine has examined native abilities. He found that the mental abilities most influenced by heredity are: 1. spatial visualization, the ability to picture patterns and structures in the mind; 2. word fluency, the ability to think of words and use them easily in talking or writing; 3. numerical ability.

Parents who have had trouble with arithmetic and spelling are likely to pass on that deficiency to their children, the Catholic Digest finds. On the other hand, abilities to reason and remember are not as strongly influenced by heredity, and training can improve skill. Dr. Vandenberg is cautious about the meaning of the word inherited. He says it is not so much the qualities themselves but the potentiality for developing them that is inherited.

COMPUTING OUR VOTES

It is increasingly evident that politicians are letting computers do much of their thinking for them. Fed raw materials in the form of public opinion polls, the electronic brains meditate electronically, then tell the politicos what we voters are likely to want in the way of brad and circuses and various kinds of benefits -- unemployment, medical, old age, fringe, poverty, etc.

The politicians, being politicians, go all out to oblige. Which explains such slogans as "Vote for Glutz Because Glutz Can Do More For You." Or, "Elect Glatz Because Glatz Can Get It For You."

Both parties, and some of our most celebrates individual politicians, make extensive use of computers. The Kennedys obviously have great faith in them, and the famed LBJ congest census is not arrived at by ouija board.

The operation is pretty impressive when you stop to think about it. Consider all the conflicting demands, from people who pay taxes and from those who want that tax money. And that's the main thing to consider, because nowadays that kind of put and take is the warp and woof of politics.

There's just one thing lacking. So far we haven't heard of any computer which takes into account certain basic principles -- such as patriotism, honesty, and love of God. Or, for that matter, the widely held belief that we have a pretty good system going here, and one that is not likely to be improved by injections of socialism or communism. Nor, so far as we know, does any computer record the fact that most of us still feel that we ought to be able to run our country without advance and consent from the international set in evidence at the UN and elsewhere.

A properly programmed computer would show that most Americans subscribe to MacArthur's dictum: "There is no substitute for victory." It would show, too, that Berkeley, New Haven, Greenwich Village and a few other noisy hot spots are not taken as seriosly by Americans as they are by certain equally noisy politicians.

Someday, no doubt, a computer will be produced which can evaluate all of these things, too. Meanwhile, the politician who ignores them does so at his own risk.

And meanwhile, too, we don't like the idea of having our vote computed until we have cast it. The computer may be accurate in reporting that there are more people who want to receive largess from the treasury than want to pay taxes into the treasury. Indeed, the computer may be right every day of the year -- except election day.

HEALTH PLAN:
SOVIET STYLE

Those who advocate that Americans emulate the Soviet system of health care should be interested in the following words from the "worker's paradise".

Izvestia, the Moscow newspaper, recently reported receipt of a letter from a lady pleading, "Help me to see!" The woman had undergone a successful cataract removal, but needed special glasses.

Izvestia noted that for more than a month, "the optical production section of the Pharmaceutical Administration of the Executive Committee of the Moscow City Society of Working People's Deputies" had been reporting that the lady's order was "being filled." Then Izvestia editorialized: "Buying prescription lenses is a problem for thousands of our people. Dozens of organizations are involved in making them, not one of which is fully responsible. The crux of the matter is that there is no single responsible bureau. The Central Administration for Medical Equipment in the Ministry of Health of the U.S.S.R. plans the production of lenses and frames for the whole nation, and regional economic councils 'adapt' this plan to local needs.

"There are four semi-domestic enterprises in the Russian Republic capable of making prescription lenses. But A.M. Yevgenyev, chief of one of them, is nagged by hundreds of telephone calls and letters from indignant customers. But he cannot help his patients: his shops, which have to serve almost the entire country, can't even meet Moscow's demand. On March 11 they refused to accept new orders so as to 'digest' those already in hand. It is intolerable that there isn't a single optical shop in 29 regional and district centers of the Russian Republic. People have to travel hundreds of miles to the capital to order eyeglasses."

This is government "care" action at its extreme.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The backstage maneuvering to stage a summit conference between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin began over a week ago, when Johnson commissioned Llewellyn Thompson, the U.S. Ambassador to Moscow, now home on leave, to get in touch with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who had just returned from Moscow. The two men are good friends, and Johnson asked them to discuss an agenda for a summit meeting.

LBJ remembered how Premier Khrushchev had come to the United Nations in 1960 and how, despite a previous friendly conversation between Khrushchev and Eisenhower at Camp David, the two did not see each other during the U.N. meeting and relations between Russia and the United States rapidly deteriorated thereafter.

President Johnson, therefore, abruptly cancelled his plans to entertain Prime Minister Hold of Australia at the LBJ ranch and asked Holt to meet him at Camp David instead. He flew back to Washington from a fund-raising dinner in Austin and sent some of his staff up to Camp David to prepare for the Australian's entertainment and later possibly Kosygin's.

What Johnson particularly wanted was to talk to Kosygin about the Vietnam war, and the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, by which Russia and the United States hope to persuade the rest of the world to check the spread of A-bombs. LBJ suggested to Ambassador Thompson, therefore, that the agenda be wide open to include not merely the Middle East but these other subjects.

However, after the Soviet delegation got under way from Moscow it was learned that although 60 Russians accompanied Kosygin there was not one Far East expert in the lot. This meant that Kosygin probably did not want to discuss Vietnam.

KOSYGIN'S COOLNESS

Also it developed that Kosygin was quite cool toward a meeting with Johnson and flatly refused to come to Washington.

Behind the coolness was the fact that the Russians were already in the bad graces of the Arabs. The Arabs had expected the Russian air force to intervene on their side in the war with Israel.

It's now learned that Nasser deliberately put out the "big lie" story of American and British planes supporting Israel in order to force the Russians to intervene. Instead ambassador Demitri Pogadaiev in Cairo informed Nasser in no uncertain terms that American planes were not participating in the war. He said that Soviet radar had been keeping a close watch on the Sixth Fleet and that not one American plane had gone near the battlefield.

It was learned later that Premier Kosygin was furious with Nasser for claiming he had been attacked by the American air force. The Arabs in turn were furious with the Russians, and appear still to be furious. It was to appease the Arabs that Kosygin called the U.N. General Assembly meeting.

American intelligence has been so carefully tuned in on Soviet messages exchanged between the Near East and Moscow that the state department learned only two hours after Israel had pounded the Arab air bases that the Russians considered the war as good as over. Even during the height of the fighting, the Kremlin began mapping its post-war diplomatic strategy.

All this is why Kosygin was not too enthusiastic about seeing Johnson. It would look as if the United States and Russia were conspiring together, and any move made by the United States is suspect by the Arab world today.

As a gesture to Kosygin, President Johnson went so far as to order the Pentagon to release new information on the air force strafing a Soviet vessel, the "Turkestan." Originally the air force claimed no American planes had gone near the Turkestan; but additional information indicated that we were wrong, and LBJ ordered the error made public immediately.

NOTE: Both the White House and the state department were concerned that Premier Kosygin not fail too badly at the U.N. It was feared that Moscow, if Kosygin did fail, would be compelled to take more drastic action to restore Russian prestige in Arab eyes.

NEGRO MUSEUM

There are many American museums displaying the cultural background of the Indian, but nothing substantial has been done in this field for the American Negro, though he represents 10 per cent of the population.

Young Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., has sponsored a bill to fill this need. It would create a commission of leading scholars to look into the establishment of a national museum of Negro history. Scheuer believes such a project would give Negro citizens a better sense of self-esteem.

What few people know is that the Negro has played a vital role in American history. While George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington are well known, others such as Chrispus Attucks, the first man to fall in the Boston Massacre, and Dr. Charles Drew, a pioneer in the development of blood plasma, are not.

Also, Matthew Hanson was the co-discoverer of the North Pole, preceding Perry by 45 minutes; Jean Du Sable is recognized by many historians as the first settler in Chicago; and Jan Matzeliger is the inventor of the shoe last, which revolutionized the shoe industry.

Rep. Scheuer wants to improve the "pride and self-image of Negro Americans by developing a better understanding of their past."

Labor's National Political Strategists Launch '68 Campaign: Warn Union Leaders Not to Harass Lyndon Johnson

Washington, D.C.: -- The presidential campaign is on. Word has been dispatched to national labor leaders by their central headquarters here -- in a set of confidential position papers -- that it is later than they think and not as certain as they believe it to be that they will defeat the Republican nominee.

In these documents is the blunt warning against taking continuous political pot shots at President Johnson.

"Accepting the almost inevitable circumstance that the AFL-CIO will be supporting President Johnson in 1968 we are already moving to put muscle into that support. . ."

Then the "leadership (of American labor) is urged to forgo the luxury of criticizing the administration on relatively minor matters."

The warning then says bluntly: "There is a lesson here in the 1966 defeat of Gov. Brown of California. Many of our people were in the absurd position of urging all-out support for a candidate (Brown), the object of years of petty fault finding."

These white papers were prepared for labor's high command by some of the AFL-CIO's most astute political infighters. They're worried, though the polls show an increase in the President's popularity.

Their leader, George Meany, who now has greater access to the White House than any man in Washington, is personally dedicated to the President's re-election. So much so that, when in the past two years he has mused with friends about re-signing, he has qualified his whimsy with the assertion that he wants to fight through '68 at the side of Lyndon Johnson. And Meany has a whim of iron.

Labor's political strategists don't fret easily. They know their own strength. But they realize, too, what is cutting in on their influence with the millions they lead. They know, for example, that many Republican governors and new senators are remaking the Republican image among the new millions in labor.

Not too long ago they were startled to see Sen. Percy talk to the Senate about Walter Reuther as though the auto union chief was a political blood brother. Percy took excerpts from the publication of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Dept. and then added: "No amount of paraphrasing on my part could substitute for the eloquent testimony of Mr. Reuther."

And such governors as Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, Raymond Shafer and Minnesota's Harold LeVander have been "dialogue-ing" with labor -- in some instances appointing them to state boards.

This doesn't exactly give the Republicans the proletarian cartoonist's image of the big-bellied capitalists with dollar signs on their white vests. Add to all this the barnstorming of Sen. Hatfield, a familiar face at union meetings, be they on the waterfront or in steel union halls, and the quiet liaison of Sen. Brooke and some unions and one gets a swift view of what is disturbing the dynamists of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE).

Not the least of COPE's concern is the beardless youth -- 26 million of whom will begin voting between the end of 1967 and 1972. Secret COPE polls have disclosed that the younger people, in and out of labor (and the outsiders worry COPE's strategists just as much as their own members), are "not with it." Certainly they have only slight identity with the veterans of the ancient struggles on turbulent picket lines. The newcomers are a status - conscious, tax - conscious, race-conscious "work class" not eager to carry that label. So COPE has sent its strategists over to the AFL-CIO Educational Dept. for at least two meetings. National labor leaders were included there as well as at a March 22nd skull session in Chicago on how to get the young.

There are meetings galore -- with Democratic Senators who won last time and those who lost and those who fear losing, such as Idaho's Frank Church, Indiana's Birch Bayh, and Wisconsin's Gaylord Nelson.

And, says COPE, in these documents: "recognizing that, in spite of our bipartisan posture, a preponderance of endorsed candidates in 1968 will be Democrats, we are working to fortify our relationship with national party organizations. . .

"We are holding meetings at which the incumbents and labor and party people can plan together."

They're wise men, these strategists. It's only 16 campaigning months to election day.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

LET'S BE CORRECT

THE TIME may have arrived when the American people should quit trying to be so puppy - dog friendly to the world and assume a more dignified posture of "correctness."

Americans are, perhaps, the friendliest people on earth. Part of it comes from our bigness and isolation. At home we see few foreigners. An alien accent intrigues us. In any erudite cocktail party the crowd is generally thickest around the foreign visitor.

We have, for a long time, suffered from a missionary guilt complex. It's an interesting combination of smugness and concern. We are proud of the "American Way." We feel sure that our outlooks and techniques are superior to those of most other countries. We would like to share our wisdom. Hence, the missionary. On the other hand, we are easily guilt - ridden because of our relative opulence. So we give, often lavishly.

OUR BRITISH cousins in their great days were somewhat like us, but not much. They were eloquently and sometimes arrogantly proud of the Empire. They wept a little for the heathen. They had their heroic missionaries and teachers who went forth into the pools of ignorance and fever to discourage infanticide, stop cannibalism and outlaw suttee. But hard on their heels came the flag and the traders.

As the Basuto chief bitterly told one of my old anthropology professors: "When the white man came here he had the Bible and we had the land. Now we've got the Bible and he's got the land."

Among the more recent colonial powers you might classify, in descending order of humanity, the French, the Dutch, the Belgians, the Germans and the Japanese. The Russians were never well enough organized in the 18th and 19th centuries to seize distant lands from primitive peoples. But in their conquest and treatment of the European satellites they would go to the bottom of the list.

Only the Americans were haunted by their strength and nervous about their prosperity. Only the Americans set forth wistfully to make the world love them.

FUNNY THING. The Israelis bombed a U.N. force in the Gaza Strip and nine Indian and two Brazilian soldiers were killed. The diplomats in the U. N. Security Council all tried to top each other in expressions of regret and grief. But 54,000 Americans died in what was billed as an official U.N. action in Korea. How much weeping did the United Nations do for our boys?

There is the human inclination to make the friend of your enemy your enemy. All our largesse to India was forgotten the moment we gave arms to Pakistan. And the Pakistanis damned us for our aid to India.

FOR MANY years Americans tried to make themselves loved in the Near East. The American University in Beirut has educated generations of Arab leaders. We are lavish with Fulbright scholarships. We poured tremendous aid funds into Arab nations, including those whose oil - rich sheiks bought Cadillacs by the shipload and rented whole hotels in Switzerland.

But because America had promoted Israel we were hated. And when Gamal Abdel Nasser, in the bleak early hours of June 6, tried to alibi the collapse of his air force by claiming that American and British planes had shot it down, the whole Near East bought it immediately. Mobs converged on the American Embassies. The American libraries went up in flames. Arab nation after Arab nation, whose leaders must have known better, severed relations with thunderous anger. In a few hours we became the official scapegoat of all the snafued Arab world.

MAYBE WE ought to relax. Maybe we should quit trying to be loved. Maybe we should assume that we will be spit on. America is a complacent dragon, a fine beast on which to beat with wooden swords and have one's picture taken standing on its back. Hatred of it is a huge convience for the government which is entangled in its own stupidity.

So be it. If we expect to be hated we will be freer to do intelligent things. We won't have to keep shoring up corrupt regimes in the hope that they will become reliable friends. We can spend our foreign aid more wisely. We can seal off some famous rat holes.

WE CAN say, "Look, your excellency. Your mob burnt our free library, which happens to be the biggest and best in your country. If you want it back, jail the leaders and build us a building. We'll just replace the books."

Or, "See here, your highness. We figure you'll gut us the first time it's convenient, but in the meantime we'd like to help your people. If you've got a sound plan and a way to keep your gang from cracking the safe we may bank - roll it."

This kind of talk will make more sense to more people than our past habit of turning the other cheek with a sickly grin. Everybody's pal -- hell! It just didn't work. Let's be stiffly correct for a change, and maybe they'll conclude we're not so crazy after all.

Four- Hitter By Rookie Dick Hughes

Maris' 8th Inning Homer Lifts Cards Past Phils

Roger Maris figures you don't need much pull to go places . . . from 10th to first, for example . . . in a hurry. All it takes is a little extra push.

Maris socked an eighth inning homer that lifted St. Louis' streaking Cardinals past Philadelphia 3-2 Friday night and stretched their National League lead to three games.

The Cardinals struggled to their sixth straight victory on the strength of Maris' tie-breaking shot and the four-hit pitching of rookie Dick Hughes after arriving in St. Louis at 5 a.m. on a flight from the West Coast, where they'd completed a 10-game road trip.

"These are the kind of days when you've got to push yourself, when everybody's got to work harder," Maris said, explaining that most of his teammates had gotten little or no sleep before taking on the Phillies.

"It's nice to be in first place," added the slugging outfielder, who finished 10th in the American League with the New York Yankees last season. "I'm certainly glad I'm on a team capable of being in first place."

In other NL action, Pittsburgh scored three runs in the ninth inning for a 4-2 victory over second place Cincinnati, Atlanta ran its winning streak to four games by trouncing New York 12-4, San Francisco smacked Los Angeles 7-1 and Chicago nipped Houston 9-8.

Maris' fifth homer of the season left him 56 short of the all-time record he set with the Yanks six years ago. But home runs, and home run records, are of little interest to the 33-year-old veteran now. He'd rather point to his .302 average and 25 runs batted in for the Cards.

"When you're in a big park (Busch Stadium), you concentrate on making contact with the ball," he said, "and that's much better than trying to pull everything.

"I was just trying to get on as a leadoff hitter (in the eighth) because Cepeda was up behind me. We're all pulling for one another. One or two guys aren't going to do it. The whole team has to be working together."

After Maris' homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth, the Phillies loaded the bases in the ninth before Hughes struck out pinch hitter Doug Clemens, completing his seventh victory against two setbacks. Hughes blanked the Phils after giving up consecutive homers to Rich Allen and John Callison in the first inning.

The Pirates broke loose in the ninth inning at Cincinnati after Jim Coker's eighth inning homer gave the Reds a 2-1 edge. Pinch hitter Maury Wills delivered the tying run with a single and reliever Bob Lee wild-pitched another across before Jose Pagan's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

Gene Alley homered for the Pirates, who handed the Reds their fifth loss in six games.

Mack Jones drove in three runs with two singles and a double and Felipe Alou had three hits and scored two runs as the Braves buried the Mets under a 13-hit barrage.

Winner Ken Johnson gave up a first inning homer to Cleon Jones, but the Braves shelled Met starter Bob Shaw for five runs in the first two innings and breezed the rest of the way.

Left-hander Mike McCormick scattered nine hits and rapped a two-run homer as the Giants trimmed the Dodgers for the sixth time in seven meetings this year. Willie Mays also homered for San Francisco, marring the pitching debut of Jim Hickman, an outfielder called in from the LA bullpen to hurl the last two innings.

McCormick, who yielded a bases-empty homer by Jim Lefebvre, boosted his pitching record to 7-3 while loser Don Sutton slipped to 4-9.

Lee Thomas' pinch hit single in the ninth drove in the winning run for the Cubs, who tied the score at 8-8 with a two-run rally in the eighth. Billy Williams and Ernie Banks each hit his 12th homer for Chicago while Houston's Jim Wynn walloped No. 18. Rusty Staub, Jim Landis and Julio Gotay also connected for the Astros.

Hughes Fans Phillies Clemens With Bases Full

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Dick Hughes started he looked like he was through. Byt the time he was through, Hughes was just getting started.

The St. Louis Cardinals pitcher laughed between bites from his sandwich as he recalled the dramatic third strike he threw past pinch hitter Doug Clemens with the bases loaded in the ninth inning. The pitch gave the Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

"I feel like going out there and pitching another game," the 29-year-old rookie said. "I was just getting started."

With a count of three-and-two, Clemens fouled off two pitches. The third one he watched zip by.

"I guess he figured I'd thrown those two straight strikes and wasn't going to throw a third," Hughes said as he took off his glasses to rub his eyes.

"I knew that pitch was a strike," Hughes added "All the umpire had to do was call it. I was already walking off the mound."

Hughes, 7-2, was so happy he even laughed when he talked, about the consecutive homers by Richie Allen and Johnny Callison in the first inning. At the time it looked like a short night for Hughes and a long one for the Cardinals.

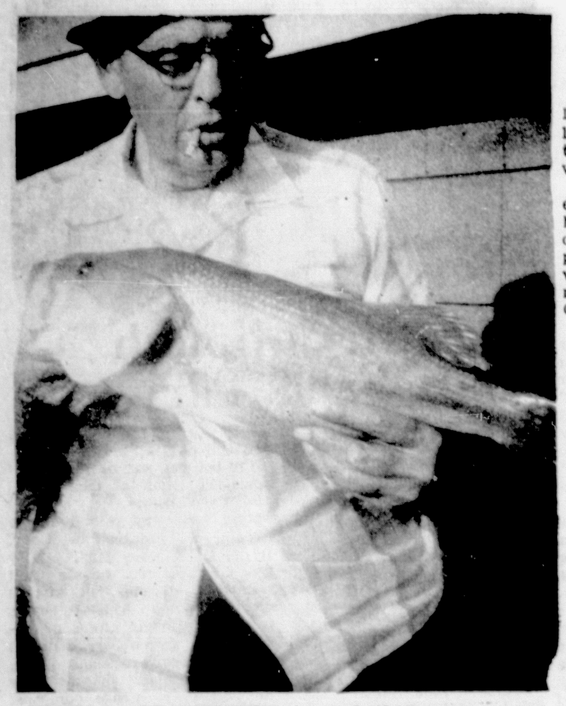

The homers didn't really shake me up too badly," Hughes said. "I knew I'd get loose pretty soon. I didn't have my good fastball in the first inning. I also didn't have my guard up.

"I was trying to hit spots. They got the homers and I decided not to throw to spots anymore."

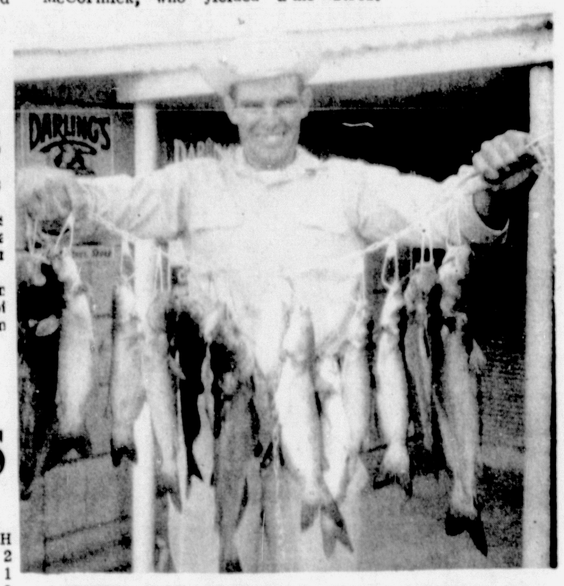

Hughes said pitching coach Billy Muffett gave him som advice in the third inning. "H said I wasn't driving off th rubber. After he told me that started opening up and my fas ball got better."

Roger Maris contributed hi own dramatics as he lined a homer in the eighth inning for the winning run.

"I take them any way I can get them," Roger said, "I'm not going to be choosy about them being dramatic."

EDGAR CROUTHERS landed this six-pound bass at Whitten's Lake.

Killebrew Smacks 22nd For Win

Cal Ermer, feeling the pinch of the pitching shorts, got a welcome shot in the arm from Dean Chance, who benefitted from a similar shot by Harmon Killebrew.

Chance pitched a brilliant three-hitter and Killebrew provided the game's only run with his 22nd homer of the year as the Minnesota Twins nipped Chicago 1-0 Friday night.

It was a change of pace for Ermer, the Twins' new manager. In 15 previous games, his staff had managed just three complete games and had allowed four or more runs 10 times.

Chance's effort was the top individual pitching job in the American League where California blanked Kansas City 2-0, New York dropped Detroit 3-1, Washington nipped Baltimore 3-2 and Boston battered Cleveland 8-4.

Ermer and Twins' President Cal Griffith huddled before the game and discussed the possibility of promoting some pitching help from Denver of the Pacific Coast League. But the idea was rejected.

Chance then made the talk academic by outduelling Joel Horlen, who lost his first game after eight victories.

The victory ended a three-game losing string for Chance and made him the American League's first 10-game winner at 10-5. He was knocked out four straight times before Friday.

Killebrew's 375-foot shot in the seventh inning gave the muscular veteran the major league home run lead over Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who has 21.

Rickey Clark and Minnie Rojas teamed up for California's three-hitter over Kansas City.

Rojas bailed Clark out of an eighth inning jam and then drove in an insurance run with a ninth inning single. Jim Fregosi had driven in the game's first run against loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter with a single in the eighth after Jay Johnstone's double.

Al Downing pitched a six-hitter for the Yankees and belted one of three solo homers that accounted for all of New York's runs against Detroit's Denny McLain.

Steve Whitaker and Tom Tresh had the other Yankee homers as McLain's total for the season ballooned to 22. He allowed 42 last year, the most in Tiger history.

Paul Casanova ripped a three-run homer off Steve Barber, giving the Senators all their runs against the Orioles.

Casanova's shot followed singles by Frank Howard and Cap Peterson after Barber had retired the first 11 Senators in order. Those were the only hits off Barber, who worked five innings.

Baltimore knocked out winner Phil Ortega in the eighth inning but Dave Baldwin and Darold Knowles choked off the late rally.

Joe Foy hammered two triples and two singles as the Red Sox clawed the Indians. Foy scored three runs and drove in another in the 13-hit Boston attack against four Cleveland pitchers.

Tony Conigliaro drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Carl Yastrzemski also stroked a pair of hits. Lee Stange went the distance for the victory, losing his shutout in the last two innings after the Red Sox had run up an 8-0 lead.

DAILY EXERCISE

I have found there are three basic exercises which strengthen me spiritually. The first is the exercise of prayer. The second is that of reading the Bible. The third is one that is vital to every Christian - that of asking in prayer each day that you might allowed to talk to someone about the Christian way of life.

FOR TIMES OF WEARINESS
By Grace V. Watkins

How many times, is courageD by a gray Enveloping of weariness, we say, "The roads of need are long, the vales are
How many times, discouraged by a gray
Enveloping of weariness, we say,
"The roads of need are long, the vales are deep.
Lord, why must precious hours be spent in sleep?"
But oh, the floried comforting, that He
Who never wearies, who is ever free
From prisoning of time, well understands
That we would minister with hearts and hands
In wider - reaching service if we could!
What shining joy to realize that God

County Issue Ties up Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate got tied up in knots Friday over a bill to require the Jackson County court to remit some of the county road and bridge money to the cities where it is collected, including Kansas City.

As the bill passed the House, the court would have been required to send back 50 per cent of the funds but the Senate changed that to 25 per cent on an 18-13 vote then passed the bill and sent it back to the House, 31-1.

Debate on the bill took almost an hour.

Passed and sent to the governor were bills to:

Set up a special state fund of $150,000 to take care of emergency situations arising when the legislature is not in session. The governor would head the emergency fund commission.

Allow local governments to set up retirement systems for all their employes. The Senate agreed to a House change putting Jefferson County back in the bill.

Pay St. Louis County election judges and clerks $20 a day instead of $14.

Pay judges of second class counties 10 cents a mile for their travel.

The problem of congressional redistricting still awaits solution in the legislature's last week.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to increase the term of the Jackson County prosecutor from two to four years and raise his salary from $15,000 to $22,500.

An emergency clause approved for the bill, which also requires the prosecutor to devote full time to his job, and forbids private practice now permitted, puts the bill into effect the moment it is signed by the governor.

Girls Staters Return Home

Their alternates are Metta Bailey of Kirkwood, and Valarie Huscher, Higginsville.

Eye Patches Turn up In Congressmen's Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Moshe Dayan look is hitting Congress.

Black eye patches like those worn by the Israeli defense minister and director of the lightning-fast military victory over the Arabs are coming to congressmen in the mail.

There's no hint to the sender's identify except for a Santa Ana, Calif., postmark.

Some recipients figure the "Win in Vietnam" card enclosed with each eye patch is a broad suggestion for the United States to employ Dayan's brisk offensive tactics in Vietnam.

WHICH BULL SIRED CALVES that averaged 28 pounds heavier at 205 days than those from the other bull? You can't tell by looking, says John Massey, University of Missouri extension livestock specialist at Columbia. A good cattleman, when selecting beef cattle breeding stock, relies on records in addition to the eye according to Massey. Individual records, on bulls, cows, and calves, are necessary for informed selection and culling. Based on records, it was predicted that calves from one of the bulls above would average 27.7 pounds heavier at weaning time. The average was 28 pounds difference. The best calves came from the bull at right.

Radar Weather Reports Are As Close as Radio

By Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE -- 'Weather Radar Reports are one of your most helpful tools for planning day-to-day outdoor activity. Once the forecaster has alerted you to the expectation of wet weather during the day, radar reports locate and follow advancing rain patterns until they move within range.

The radar report first of all verifies the existence of developing or spreading showers predicted by the forecaster. Next, they describe the location and extent of shower patterns, the direction and speed with which they are moving, and whether they are increasing or decreasing in intensity. They may also indicate that extremely active cells are capable of producing hail or damaging winds.

When radar describes the existence of a line of thunderstorms 20 miles northwest of Portageville, moving southeastward at 20 miles per hour, we can expect to sight approaching thunderclouds in about an hour. Another report might indicate only widely scattered thunderstorm cells 20 miles northwest of Portageville with little or no movement noted. It is up to the farmer, foreman or resort owner to decide what action to take to prepare for rapidly approaching potentially hazardous weather, or to keep a weather eye open in the event that the stationary thunderstorm begins to move his way.

Radar reports available through the ESSA Weather Wire to Missouri Bootheel mass news disseminators are as close to you as your portable radio. They give you the capability of making maximum use of planning time when approaching wet weather threatens your work or your life.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Local farmers are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of using post-emergence chemical weed control applications to control weeds in cotton.

Of course, the use of post-emergence chemicals in cotton has become a common practice in this area during recent years. In spite of this, unfavorable weather conditions experienced during the spring planting season both last year and this year, have changed some farmers' opinions regarding the use of post - emergence chemicals. A high percentage of the cotton farmers in the area used a pre - emergence weed control chemical when cotton was originally planted this spring and a number of farmers used a combination of chemicals. Much of the cotton was replanted, and in a number of cases an additional pre - emergence chemical weed control treatment was made. In many cases the cotton fields were finally planted to soybeans, and farmers are now experiencing considerable damage to soybeans resulting from the chemical weed control treatments previously applied for cotton on the same fields. As a result, comments from many cotton farmers indicate that they are planning on going easier on pre - emergence chemicals and are going to concentrate more on the use of post - emergence chemicals for cotton next year.

This decision on the part of many farmers would seem to be well justified for at least two reasons. First, we do not have adequate research on the use of some combinations of pre-emergence chemicals or the use of more than one application of pre-emergence chemicals, so there is a considerable gamble in applying either. The use of pre - emergence chemicals for cotton is still an important practice, but they should be used in accordance with recommendations based on adequate research to make them conclusive. Secondly, we have a variety of post - emergence chemical weed control treatments that farmers can use later in the season to maintain a weed-free condition in cotton fields. Beginning early in the life of the crop, non-fortified herbicidal aids are recommended when cotton is two inches or more in height but before cracks occur in the stem covering of the cotton plant during true bark formation. Oils should be used as soon as possible after weeds come up at the rate of five to seven gallons per acre. Not more than two applications should be made at seven - day intervals.

After cotton is at least three inches tall, either DSMA or MSMA can be used as a directed spray at rates up to two pounds of MSMA or three pounds of DSMA per acre. A reliable surfactant should be added to the spray mixture at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. DSMA or MSMA should be applied only when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher. Not more than two applications should be made to a crop with no treatments made after the first bloom appears.

After cotton plants are at least six inches tall, Diuron (Karmex) plus a surfactant can be used as a directed spray to control annual weeds at the base of cotton plants. Apply at the rate of .3 to .5 Diuron per acre with a reliable surfactant added at the rate of one - fourth to one - half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. This treatment should be made before weeds are three inches tall.

A mixture consisting of Diuron (Karmex) plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be applied in the same manner as the Diuron-surfactant solution outlined above for the control of annual weed grasses two to four inches tall. Recommended rates call for the use of one - half pound of Diuron and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as described for the Diuron - surfactant mixture. Best results are obtained when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher and no more than two treatments should be made per crop.

A mixture consisting of Prometryne plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be used in the same manner as the Diuron-DSMA - surfactant combination. Recommended rates are one-half pound of Prometryne and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as suggested for the Diuron - DSMA -surfactant solution. Annual weeds should not be over five inches tall for best results.

Good weed control should be accomplished from the use of these treatments if recommendations as to the chemicals to apply, rates of application, proper size of cotton and weeds, and temperature conditons are followed.

Of Interest to Homemakers

By Fredericka Plummer

CHARLESTON - At a recent conference, a gentlemen in the investment business told counseled families who asked about investing some of their money. Before investing he advised looking at the total family financial program. He recommended an emergency fund, life insurance, and a decision about home ownership, before making an investment.

You will find different guidelines for an emergency fund. One is $1500 to $5000. Another says your income for 3 to 6 months. If you put too much in an emergency fund, you will have idle money. It has to earn 2% to 3% just to keep up with inflation.

Life insurance is important because it can give you an estate now while you pay later. One guideline for the amount is 2 to 3 years your annual income. More than the minimum is desirable. The cheapest type of policy is probably the best insurance for the starting family.

Not every one should strive to be a home owner. If you are temporary in your location, you probably would be ahead to rent. Many people of retirement age would be better off in an apartment, rather than having to cope with the responsibilities that goes with owning a home.

If you are financing a home, don't try to pay off too fast in your anxiety to get it clear. You should have some surplus funds to be used in other ways, such as investing.

If you are going to save for an emergency fund or an investment, you may need a gimmick. A piggy bank is perhaps the oldest and most widely used method. Remember to empty it periodically to put your money to work drawing interest.

Tax High in 38 Counties

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, a taxpayers' association ever insistent that taxes be held to a minimum, said today 38 Missouri counties could lower tax levies without curtailing services.

Benton County, the survey said, could lower its levy as much as 46 cents on $100 assessed valuation and still meet its budget.

Thirty-seven others could reduce tax levies from 3 cents up, the survey said.

It blamed three county failures for the higher-than-needed taxes.

Failure to take into account higher assessed valuations in setting the levies, appropriating more than is needed and underestimating non-property tax revenue.

"In fairness to taxpayers," the survey said, "a governmental unit should not burden them with a higher tax rate than needed to finance expenditures. When balances are accumulated in an amount larger than needed to operate on a cash basis, tax rate reductions should be made and the money left in the possession of the taxpayers."

The survey listed these counties as levying too great a property tax and the amount it could be reduced:

Audrian 9 cents, Camden 7, Carroll 4, Cass 4, Chariton 16, Cole 3, DeKalb 9, Dunklin 7, Grundy 10, Harrison 24, Henry 17, Lincoln 26, Miller 9, Monroe 16, Newton 15, Osage 15, Pemiscot 19, Perry 6, Pettis 5, Phelps 3, Pike 19, Platte 13, Ralls 21, Randolph 6, Ray 14, Saline 19, Ste. Genevieve 7, Stone 4, Texas 22, Vernon 5, and Washington 3.

Some men's ambition is fame.
Some men's ambition is gold.

Soviet Press Barely Mentions Summit Talk

MOSCOW (AP) — A 37-world report that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met appeared near the bottom of Pravda's front page today. It was the Soviet press' only mention of the Glassboro, N.J., summit conference.

Papers other than the Soviet Communist party organ apparently went to press too early for the brief dispatch by the official news agency Tass.

NAMESVILLE

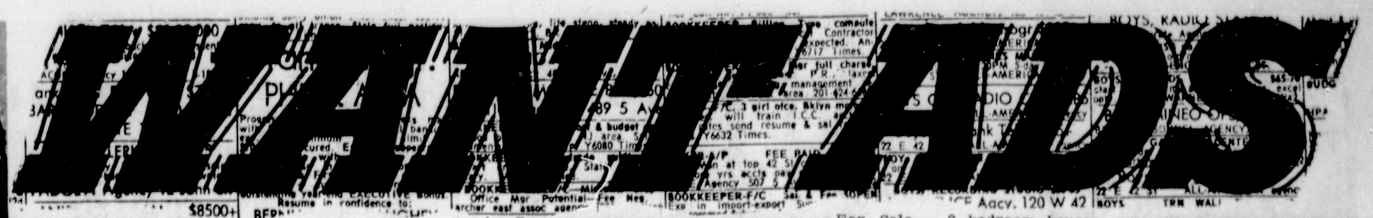

FRANKFORD, KY. (AP)- Travelers in Kentucky may wonder at the appropriateness of the names of communities they drive through.

Oddville is far from Ordinary, as might be expected, and Wisdom is the next thing to Freedom. Yet, not much separates Frearsville from Paradise and South is north of Sweden.

The Bluegrass State's Sunrise is in the north, it has only one Shoulderblade and its Pride is nowhere near a fall. And Eighty Eight is on KY 90.

And if you get too confused, there is a Relief not far from a Gimlet.

Four- Hitter By Rookie Dick Hughes

Maris' 8th Inning Homer Lifts Cards Past Phils

Roger Maris figures you don't need much pull to go places . . . from 10th to first, for example . . . in a hurry. All it takes is a little extra push.

Maris socked an eighth inning homer that lifted St. Louis' streaking Cardinals past Philadelphia 3-2 Friday night and stretched their National League lead to three games.

The Cardinals struggled to their sixth straight victory on the strength of Maris' tie-breaking shot and the four-hit pitching of rookie Dick Hughes after arriving in St. Louis at 5 a.m. on a flight from the West Coast, where they'd completed a 10-game road trip.

"These are the kind of days when you've got to push yourself, when everybody's got to work harder," Maris said, explaining that most of his teammates had gotten little or no sleep before taking on the Phillies.

"It's nice to be in first place," added the slugging outfielder, who finished 10th in the American League with the New York Yankees last season. "I'm certainly glad I'm on a team capable of being in first place."

In other NL action, Pittsburgh scored three runs in the ninth inning for a 4-2 victory over second place Cincinnati, Atlanta ran its winning streak to four games by trouncing New York 12-4, San Francisco smacked Los Angeles 7-1 and Chicago nipped Houston 9-8.

Maris' fifth homer of the season left him 56 short of the all-time record he set with the Yanks six years ago. But home runs, and home run records, are of little interest to the 33-year-old veteran now. He'd rather point to his .302 average and 25 runs batted in for the Cards.

"When you're in a big park (Busch Stadium), you concentrate on making contact with the ball," he said, "and that's much better than trying to pull everything.

"I was just trying to get on as a leadoff hitter (in the eighth) because Cepeda was up behind me. We're all pulling for one another. One or two guys aren't going to do it. The whole team has to be working together."

After Maris' homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth, the Phillies loaded the bases in the ninth before Hughes struck out pinch hitter Doug Clemens, completing his seventh victory against two setbacks. Hughes blanked the Phils after giving up consecutive homers to Rich Allen and John Callison in the first inning.

The Pirates broke loose in the ninth inning at Cincinnati after Jim Coker's eighth inning homer gave the Reds a 2-1 edge. Pinch hitter Maury Wills delivered the tying run with a single and reliever Bob Lee wild-pitched another across before Jose Pagan's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

Gene Alley homered for the Pirates, who handed the Reds their fifth loss in six games.

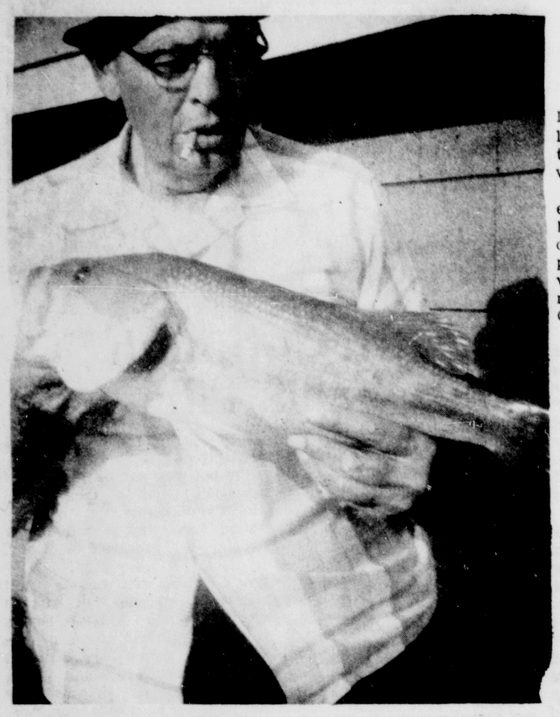

Mack Jones drove in three runs with two singles and a double and Felipe Alou had three hits and scored two runs as the Braves buried the Mets under a 13-hit barrage.

Winner Ken Johnson gave up a first inning homer to Cleon Jones, but the Braves shelled Met starter Bob Shaw for five runs in the first two innings and breezed the rest of the way.

Left-hander Mike McCormick scattered nine hits and rapped a two-run homer as the Giants trimmed the Dodgers for the sixth time in seven meetings this year. Willie Mays also homered for San Francisco, marring the pitching debut of Jim Hickman, an outfielder called in from the LA bullpen to hurl the last two innings.

McCormick, who yielded bases-empty homer by Jim Lefebvre, boosted his pitching record to 7-3 while loser Don Sutton slipped to 4-9.

Lee Thomas' pinch hit single in the ninth drove in the winning run for the Cubs, who tied the score at 8-8 with a two-run rally in the eighth. Billy Williams and Ernie Banks each hit his 12th homer for Chicago while Houston's Jim Wynn walloped No. 18. Rusty Staub, Jim Landis and Julio Gotay also connected for a the Astros.

EDGAR CROUTHERS landed this six-pound bass at Whitten's Lake.

Hughes Fans Phillies Clemens With Bases Full

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Dick Hughes started he looked like he was through. Byt the time he was through, Hughes was just getting started.

The St. Louis Cardinals pitcher laughed between bites from his sandwich as he recalled the dramatic third strike he threw past pinch hitter Doug Clemens with the bases loaded in the ninth inning. The pitch gave the Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

"I feel like going out there and pitching another game," the 29-year-old rookie said. "I was just getting started."

With a count of three-and-two, Clemens fouled off two pitches. The third one he watched zip by.

"I guess he figured I'd thrown those two straight strikes and wasn't going to throw a third," Hughes said as he took off his glasses to rub his eyes.

"I knew that pitch was a strike," Hughes added "All the umpire had to do was call it. I was already walking off the mound."

Hughes, 7-2, was so happy he even laughed when he talked, about the consecutive homers by Richie Allen and Johnny Callison in the first inning. At the time it looked like a short night for Hughes and a long one for the Cardinals.

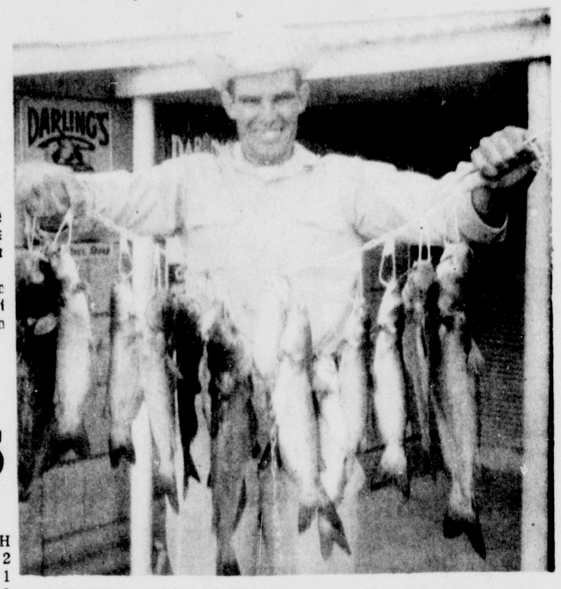

The homers didn't really shake me up too badly," Hughes said. "I knew I'd get loose pretty soon. I didn't have my good fastball in the first inning. I also didn't have my guard up.

"I was trying to hit spots. They got the homers and I decided not to throw to spots anymore."

Hughes said pitching coach Billy Muffett gave him som advice in the third inning. "H said I wasn't driving off th rubber. After he told me that started opening up and my fas ball got better."

Roger Maris contributed his own dramatics as he lined a homer in the eighth inning for the winning run.

"I take them any way I can get them," Roger said. "I'm not going to be choosy about them being dramatic."

Chance then made the talk academic by outduelling Joel Horlen, who lost his first game after eight victories.

The victory ended a three-game losing string for Chance and made him the American League's first 10-game winner at 10-5. He was knocked out four straight times before Friday.

Killebrew's 375-foot shot in the seventh inning gave the muscular veteran the major league home run lead over Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who has 21.

Until he connected, the twins had not moved a man past first base against Horlen and had left only one man on base as the White Sox choked off a pair of rallies with double plays.

Rickey Clark and Minnie Rojas teamed up for California's three-hitter over Kansas City.

Rojas bailed Clark out of an eighth inning jam and then drove in an insurance run with a ninth inning single. Jim Fregosi had driven in the game's first run against loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter with a single in the eighth after Jay Johnstone's double.

Al Downing pitched a six-hitter for the Yankees and belted one of three solo homers that accounted for all of New York's runs against Detroit's Denny McLain.

Steve Whitaker and Tom Tresh had the other Yankee homers as McLain's total for the season ballooned to 22. He allowed 42 last year, the most in Tiger history.

Paul Casanova ripped a three-run homer off Steve Barber, giving the Senators all their runs against the Orioles.

Casanova's shot followed singles by Frank Howard and Cap Peterson after Barber had retired the first 11 Senators in order. Those were the only hits off Barber, who worked five innings.

Baltimore knocked out winner Phil Ortega in the eighth inning but Dave Baldwin and Darold Knowles choked off the late rally.

Joe Foy hammered two triples and two singles as the Red Sox clawed the Indians. Foy scored three runs and drove in another in the 13-hit Boston attack against four Cleveland pitchers.

Tony Conigliaro drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Carl Yastrzemski also stroked a pair of hits. Lee Stange went the distance for the victory, losing his shutout in the last two innings after the Red Sox had run up an 8-0 lead.

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian Football League players Friday voted to accept a pension plan proposal which should be in operation this year. The 17-point proposal, earlier approved by the league's nine clubs, calls for each team to pay $300,000, to be matched by the players, into the fund each year.

KillebrewSmacks 22nd For Win

Cal Ermer, feeling the pinch of the pitching shorts, got a welcome shot in the arm from Dean Chance, who benefitted from a similar shot by Harmon Killebrew.

Chance pitched a brilliant three-hitter and Killebrew provided the game's only run with his 22nd homer of the year as the Minnesota Twins nipped Chicago 1-0 Friday night.

It was a change of pace for Ermer, the Twins' new manager. In 15 previous games, his staff had managed just three complete games and had allowed four or more runs 10 times.

Chance's effort was the top individual pitching job in the American League where California blanked Kansas City 2-0, New York dropped Detroit 3-1, Washington nipped Baltimore 3-2 and Boston battered Cleveland 8-4.

Ermer and Twins' President Cal Griffith huddled before the game and discussed the possibility of promoting some pitching help from Denver of the Pacific Coast League. But the idea was rejected.

DAILY EXERCISE

I have found there are three basic exercises which strengthen me spiritually. The first is the exercise of prayer. The second is that of reading the Bible. The third is one that is vital to every Christian - that of asking in prayer each day that you might allowed to talk to someone about the Christian way of life.

Ann Landers

Smart Cookies Are Proud of Their Heritage

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a letter from a 15-year-old girl whose foreign-born parents refused to speak English.

My parents came to this country from Latvia. They spoke Latvian all the time. When I started school I couldn't speak one word of English. I attended Latvian church, joined a Latvian Girl Scout troup, took piano lessons from a Latvian teacher and pretty soon I got to hate everything Latvian because it was forced on me.

When I was 14 my folks sent me (screaming) to a Latvian camp in Michigan. There I met a Latvian boy who changed my thinking. He helped me understand that my parents were trying to preserve their culture, and that the only way to do it was through their children.

I met several kids who were proud to be Latvians. (I had always been ashamed.)

Now I know I want to marry a Latvian boy (I don't know who yet) and pass on this wonderful heritage to my children. --- PROUD NOW

Dear Proud: Some members of minority groups wish they could be something else. It takes a smart cookie to be proud of her heritage. I salute you.

Dear Ann Landers: Nice weather is here -- and with it the eternal affliction. Guests. I sometimes wish we didn't have such a comfortable and attractive summer home because uninvited friends and relatives think we are running a hotel. I am just now recuperating from my third batch of visitors and most of the summer is ahead.

I am going through the menopause but I manage to hold down a full - time job as well as keep the house going. All winter I look forward to casual outdoor living during the summer months. With company around it is a strain, not to mention the extra work.

Some people enjoy out-of-town guests. I am not writing for them. I am writing for myself and for others who want to be alone. If any of you reading this column wonder if you are a welcome guest, ask yourself one question: "Was I invited?" If you were, GO. If not, do somebody a favor and stay home. --- HOLIDAY OUT, NOT INN

Dear Holiday: Here's your letter and lotsa luck. The pests never think you mean THEM. For the repeaters, a "Sorry, not this year," should be the standard reply when they announce they're going to honor you with a visit.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you settle a family dispute? I have a very good friend who attends another school on the other side of town. We are both honor students and do not goof off. We like to talk on the phone during the week every night to relieve the monotony of studying. I say a 15 - or 20 - minute conversation is not excessive. My mother says five minutes is plenty for teen-agers to "yak about nothing."

Please take a stand on this. Your column is respected in our home. --- CLOCKED IN POUGHKEEPSIE

Dear Clocked: I feel that 15 minutes is not unreasonable for a teen-age phone chat --- provided, of course, Mom or Dad does not need the phone for a specific reason. Telephoning is a good outlet --- furthermore, kids who are at home are not out getting into trouble.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

SCOTT COUNTY Ramblings

TOM B. STROUP
Director and Agricultural Agent

Many homemakers have asked for the best way to control cockroaches in the home.

MU Extension Entomologist Leroy Peters says properly applied insecticides will get them every time!

But first, all cupboards must be cleaned of food and utensils and shelves washed with soap and water.

Then spray lightly the walls and underneath sides of shelves, bottom sides of drawers, under the sink and lavatory, around baseboard and drainboards . . . and any other places that are hard to reach.

Don't spray any surface like bread-boards that will be in direct contact with food.

The best insecticides are 2-percent chlordane or one-half percent dieldrin. If roaches seem to be resistant to these, try a one - half percent solution of diazinon . . . a solution of one - half percent dichlorvos plus one - half percent dieldrin . . . or a one - percent solution of ronnel known as Korlan.

How To Get Chiggers Out of The Yard

Many homeowners have asked how they can eliminate the menace of chiggers in their lawns. Applying chlordane, dieldrin, toxaphene or diazinon to the grass will work.

One gallon of mixed spray will cover about a thousand square feet of lawn surface. Follow directions on the container of insecticide for mixing.

Do not let small children or pets on the treated grass until after it has been sprinkled and is dry.

Chemical Weed Control In Soybeans

There are two general methods used in making chemical applications to control weeds in soybeans.

First, there are the preemergents. These chemicals are applied to the soil either before or immediately after planting the crop. There are only two chemicals included as post emergents -- one is applied shortly after the soybeans emerge and the other is applied as a pre-bloom treatment.

The recommended surface - applied preemergents include amiben, randox, sodium P.C.P. and "ramrod."

Under favorable conditions, amiben will control most broad-leaved and grass - type annual weeds. However, some cultivation may be necessary - depending upon rate of application and soil type and rainfall. Randox as a preemergent generally contols grass - type weeds more effectively than the broad - leaved group. Randox is especially effective in controlling giant foxtail.

Ramrod, closely related to randox but recommended a year ago for the first time, has the advantage of being considerably easier to handle. As of the present time, Ramrod has F.D.A. approval for soybeans harvested for seed purposes only.

Treflan, a relatively new herbicide, is recommended to be used on soybeans in 1967. To be effective, Treflan must be incorporated in the soil before the beans are planted. Treflan is quite effective in controlling grass - type weeds like giant foxtail, shattercane and johnson-grass seedlings. Treflan is less effective in controlling cocklebur, morning glory, velvet leaf, or prickly sida.

The second group is post - emergent herbicides -- 2, 4-d butyric is the only post - emergent recommended. It is applied during pre to mid - bloom and is effective only on such broad - leaved weeds as cocklebur and morning glory. Tenoran, a new herbicide, is considered in the experimental stage. It should be applied before weeds are more than 2 inches tall.

There are a number of new herbicides for soybeans. These include planavin, vernam, and dacthal as soil incorporated preemergents, lorox and alanap plus as surface applied preemergents.

Being relatively new these herbicides should be considered experimental and should be used on limited acreage until more information relative to their performance is available.

Time To Control Bagworms and Spider Mites On Evergreens

Bagwom feeding will become quite evident on evergreens in the weeks just ahead. Spider Mites are now present on evergreens. Both of these pests should be controlled now before damage becomes more severe during the hot, dry weather of July and August. If you use either carbaryl or toxaphene for bagworms, include either Aramite or dicofol (Kelthane) for mites. If diazinon or malathion are used for bagworms, these will control mites but a second application will be needed in 7 to 10 days.

How To Mix Chemical - Use carbaryl at rate of 2 lbs. of 50% per 100 gallons of water, or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use toxaphene at rate of 3 lbs. (2 quts. 60-65% toxaphene emul concentrate) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use diazinon at rate of 0.5 lbs. (1 lb. of 50% diazinon wettable powder) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

of water or 1 teaspoon 50% wettable powder or 25% emul. concentrate per gallon of water.

Brittons Honored

Charlie Britton of Bell City and his son, Deward Britton, of Wardell were honored Sunday at a birthday dinner. The name Britton was misspelled in Thursday's Daily Standard.

If You Were the Judge

Only Delivered Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend

While Henry had plenty of assets, they didn't compare to the assets of his shapely girl friend Carolyn. While she carried her assets with her, however, Henry kept most of his in his library safe. One day Henry pointed to the safe and told Carolyn that he was giving her a gift of all the diamonds that the safe contained. Whereupon, she thanked Henry with a kiss on the cheek and they left the room. Henry, unfortunately, never returned, for shortly thereafter, he turned in his life subscription and died.

Immediately, Carolyn sought to obtain possession of the numerous diamonds in the library safe but the executor of Henry's estate refused to recognize her claim to them.

"But they're mine," she insisted. "Henry specifically gave them to me."

"Nonsense," retorted the executor. "They've never left the safe. Therefore, how could Henry have given them to you. While you may have prospected Henry, as far as I'm concerned, you've got no prospect of getting the diamonds."

Bouncing angrily out of the room, Carolyn took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you recognize Carolyn's claim to the diamonds?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there is no gift unless there is a delivery and an acceptance of the thing being given. In this case, there was no delivery.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

How to measure a newspaper ad

Assume, for a moment, that it were possible to clip this display message from each copy of this newspaper printed for today's issue, and that these clippings were neatly stacked before you.

First, remove all clippings which appeared in copies spoiled in distribution, or which were otherwise, undelivered, left over, returned, or used in our office for file or checking copies. Since no one read these, they can go into the wastepaper.

Second, remove those messages which appeared in copies delivered to subscribers behind in their payments, service copies to advertisers and agencies, employes, any complimentary or promotion lists, and all others which do not qualify as paid circulation. Just for the record, you might want to count the number of these, but then they go into the wastepaper, too.

Now our stack is down to only the paying customers. Count the number of clippings in the stack. When that's done (and the exact figure recorded), separate the clippings into three separate stacks – one for those distributed to readers in your central market; one for those distributed to readers living outside this market, but who shop here regularly; and one for those copies delivered to readers living elsewhere. Count each stack and, when you have these figures accurately recorded, divide the clippings in separate stacks by method of delivery (carriers, dealers, vendors, mail, and so forth), and count each stack.

You look a little tired at this point – we'll help by counting the number of clippings appearing in copies sold with premiums, in combination with other publications, and at special rates. We'll also count the number sold in clubbing offers or as a result of a contest or with an insurance offer.

Rested now? Give us a hand and we will sort out the clippings in separate stacks for each city and town in which copies were distributed (just exactly where every copy of this message went – to the paying customers only). Then we count each stack for the record.

Now, while you relax and finish reading this message after counting and measuring our circulation in so many different ways, perhaps you would like to see what it costs each of the paying customers to buy a copy of this newspaper?

Then again, if all this talking about some of the ways the Audit Bureau of Circulations regularly counts and measures our circulation has you tired out, just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC Report.

ABC's stacks of figures aren't nearly as tiring and tell you a great deal more about the distribution of your advertising messages in this newspaper.

Little Miss Dexter Contest August 11

DEXTER -- The Soroptimist Club of Stoddard County has set the date of August 11 for the annual Little Miss Dexter Contest to be held in the high school Auditorium. The funds from the project are used to pay on the Club's $1,000 pledge to the Dexter Memorial Hospital.

WHICH BULL SIRED CALVES that averaged 28 pounds heavier at 205 days than those from the other bull? You can't tell by looking, says John Massey, University of Missouri extension livestock specialist at Columbia. A good cattleman, when selecting beef cattle breeding stock, relies on records in addition to the eye according to Massey. Individual records, on bulls, cows, and calves, are necessary for informed selection and culling. Based on records, it was predicted that calves from one of the bulls above would average 27.7 pounds heavier at weaning time. The average was 28 pounds difference. The best calves came from the bull at right.

County Issue Ties up Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate got tied up in knots Friday over a bill to require the Jackson County court to remit some of the county road and bridge money to the cities where it is collected, including Kansas City.

As the bill passed the House, the court would have been required to send back 50 per cent of the funds but the Senate changed that to 25 per cent on an 18-13 vote then passed the bill and sent it back to the House, 31-1.

Debate on the bill took almost an hour.

Passed and sent to the governor were bills to:

Set up a special state fund of $150,000 to take care of emergency situations arising when the legislature is not in session. The governor would head the emergency fund commission.

Allow local governments to set up retirement systems for all their employes. The Senate agreed to a House change putting Jefferson County back in the bill.

Pay St. Louis County election judges and clerks $20 a day instead of $14.

Pay judges of second class counties 10 cents a mile for their travel.

The problem of congressional redistricting still awaits solution in the legislature's last week.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to increase the term of the Jackson County prosecutor from two to four years and raise his salary from $15,000 to $22,500.

An emergency clause approved for the bill, which also requires the prosecutor to devote full time to his job, and forbids private practice now permitted, puts the bill into effect the moment it is signed by the governor.

Girls Staters Return Home

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The 600 members of Missouri Girls State returned to their homes today, after choosing two girls to represent Missouri at Girls' Nation, to be held in Washington in August.

The delegates are Christie Hedges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hedges, Camdenton, and Judith Wagner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Myron L. Wagner, Kansas City.

Their alternates are Metta Bailey of Kirkwood, and Valarie Huscher, Higginsville.

Eye Patches Turn up In Congressmen's Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Moshe Dayan look is hitting Congress.

Black eye patches like those worn by the Israeli defense minister and director of the lightning-fast military victory over the Arabs are coming to congressmen in the mail.

There's no hint to the sender's identify except for a Santa Ana, Calif., postmark.

Some recipients figure the "Win in Vietnam" card enclosed with each eye patch is a broad suggestion for the United States to employ Dayan's brisk offensive tactics in Vietnam.

Radar Weather Reports Are As Close as Radio

By Leonard F. Hand
Agricultural Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Weather Radar Reports are one of your most helpful tools for planning day-to-day outdoor activity. Once the forecaster has alerted you to the expectation of wet weather during the day, radar reports locate and follow advancing rain patterns until they move within range.

The radar report first of all verifies the existence of developing or spreading showers predicted by the forecaster. Next, they describe the location and extent of shower patterns, the direction and speed with which they are moving, and whether they are increasing or decreasing in intensity. They may also indicate that extremely active cells are capable of producing hail or damaging winds.

When radar describes the existence of a line of thunderstorms 20 miles northwest of Portageville, moving southeastward at 20 miles per hour, we can expect to sight approaching thunderclouds in about an hour. Another report might indicate only widely scattered thunderstorm cells 20 miles northwest of Portageville with little or no movement noted. It is up to the farmer, foreman or resort owner to decide what action to take to prepare for rapidly approaching potentially hazardous weather, or to keep a weather eye open in the event that the stationary thunderstorm begins to move his way.

Radar reports available through the ESSA Weather Wire to Missouri Bootheel mass news disseminators are as close to you as your portable radio. They give you the capability of making maximum use of planning time when approaching wet weather threatens your work or your life.

Ceremony Hails New Lead Mine

BONNE TERRE, Mo. (AP)— St. Joseph Lead Co. dedicated its newest facility, the completed automated Fletcher mine and mill, Friday in a ceremony attended by company officers and the board of trustees.

The Fletcher facility, 40 miles southwest of Bonne Terre, has been in production since February. It has a capacity of 5,000 tons of mine ore per day.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Local farmers are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of using post-emergence chemical weed control applications to control weeds in cotton.

Of course, the use of post-emergence chemicals in cotton has become a common practice in this area during recent years. In spite of this, unfavorable weather conditions experienced during the spring planting season both last year and this year, have changed some farmers' opinions regarding the use of post - emergence chemicals. A high percentage of the cotton farmers in the area used a pre - emergence weed control chemical when cotton was originally planted this spring and a number of farmers used a combination of chemicals. Much of the cotton was replanted, and in a number of cases an additional pre - emergence chemical weed control treatment was made. In many cases the cotton fields were finally planted to soybeans, and farmers are now experiencing considerable damage to soybeans resulting from the chemical weed control treatments previously applied for cotton on the same fields. As a result, comments from many cotton farmers indicate that they are planning on going easier on pre - emergence chemicals and are going to concentrate more on the use of post - emergence chemicals for cotton next year.

This decision on the part of many farmers would seem to be well justified for at least two reasons. First, we do not have adequate research on the use of some combinations of pre-emergence chemicals or the use of more than one application of pre-emergence chemicals, so there is a considerable gamble in applying either. The use of pre - emergence chemicals for cotton is still an important practice, but they should be used in accordance with recommendations based on adequate research to make them conclusive. Secondly, we have a variety of post - emergence chemical weed control treatments that farmers can use later in the season to maintain a weed-free condition in cotton fields. Beginning early in the life of the crop, non-fortified herbicidal aids are recommended when cotton is two inches or more in height but before cracks occur in the stem covering of the cotton plant during true bark formation. Oils should be used as soon as possible after weeds come up at the rate of five to seven gallons per acre. Not more than two applications should be made at seven - day intervals.

After cotton is at least three inches tall, either DSMA or MSMA can be used as a directed spray at rates up to two pounds of MSMA or three pounds of DSMA per acre. A reliable surfactant should be added to the spray mixture at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. DSMA or MSMA should be applied only when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher. Not more than two applications should be made to a crop with no treatments made after the first bloom appears.

After cotton plants are at least six inches tall, Diuron (Karmex) plus a surfactant can be used as a directed spray to control annual weeds at the base of cotton plants. Apply at the rate of .3 to .5 Diuron per acre with a reliable surfactant added at the rate of one - fourth to one - half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray solution. This treatment should be made before weeds are three inches tall.

A mixture consisting of Diuron (Karmex) plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be applied in the same manner as the Diuron-surfactant solution outlined above for the control of annual weed grasses two to four inches tall. Recommended rates call for the use of one - half pound of Diuron and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as described for the Diuron - surfactant mixture. Best results are obtained when the air temperature is 80 degrees F. or higher and no more than two treatments should be made per crop.

A mixture consisting of Prometryne plus DSMA plus a surfactant may be used in the same manner as the Diuron-DSMA - surfactant combination. Recommended rates are one-half pound of Prometryne and 1 1/2 to three pounds of DSMA with the surfactant added as suggested for the Diuron - DSMA -surfactant solution. Annual weeds should not be over five inches tall for best results.

Good weed control should be accomplished from the use of these treatments if recommendations as to the chemicals to apply, rates of application, proper size of cotton and weeds, and temperature conditons are followed.

Of Interest to Homemakers

By Fredericka Plummer

CHARLESTON - At a recent conference, a gentlemen in the investment business told how he counseled families who asked about investing some of their money. Before investing he advised looking at the total family financial program. He recommended an emergency fund, life insurance, and a decision about home ownership, before making an investment.

You will find different guidelines for an emergency fund. One is $1500 to $5000. Another says your income for 3 to 6 months. If you put too much in an emergency fund, you will have idle money. It has to earn 2% to 3% just to keep up with inflation.

Life insurance is important because it can give you an estate now while you pay later. One guideline for the amount is 2 to 3 years your annual income. More than the minimum is desirable. The cheapest type of policy is probably the best insurance for the starting family.

Not every one should strive to be a home owner. If you are temporary in your location, you probably would be ahead to rent. Many people of retirement age would be better off in an apartment, rather than having to cope with the responsibilities that goes with owning a home.

If you are financing a home, don't try to pay off too fast in your anxiety to get it clear. You should have some surplus funds to be used in other ways, such as investing.

If you are going to save for an emergency fund or an investment, you may need a gimmick. A piggy bank is perhaps the oldest and most widely used method. Remember to empty it periodically to put your money to work drawing interest.

Soviet Press Barely Mentions Summit Talk

MOSCOW (AP) — A 37-world report that President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met appeared near the bottom of Pravda's front page today. It was the Soviet press' only mention of the Glassboro, N.J., summit conference.

Papers other than the Soviet Communist party organ apparently went to press too early for the brief dispatch by the official news agency Tass.

NAMESVILLE

FRANKFORD, KY. (AP) - Travelers in Kentucky may wonder at the appropriateness of the names of communities they drive through.

Oddville is far from Ordinary, as might be expected, and Wisdom is the next thing to Freedom. Yet, not much separates Frearsville from Paradise and South is north of Sweden.

The Bluegrass State's Sunrise is in the north, it has only one Shoulderblade and its Pride is nowhere near a fall. And Eighty Eight is on KY 90.

And if you get too confused, there is a Relief not far from a Gimlet.

Tax High in 38 Counties

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, a taxpayers' association ever insistent that taxes be held to a minimum, said today 38 Missouri counties could lower tax levies without curtailing services.

Benton County, the survey said, could lower its levy as much as 46 cents on $100 assessed valuation and still meet its budget.

Thirty-seven others could reduce tax levies from 3 cents up, the survey said.

It blamed three county failures for the higher-than-needed taxes.

Failure to take into account higher assessed valuations in setting the levies, appropriating more than is needed and underestimating non-property tax revenue.

"In fairness to taxpayers," the survey said, "a governmental unit should not burden them with a higher tax rate than needed to finance expenditures. When balances are accumulated in an amount larger than needed to operate on a cash basis, tax rate reductions should be made and the money left in the possession of the taxpayers."

The survey listed these counties as levying too great a property tax and the amount it could be reduced:

Audrian 9 cents, Camden 7, Carroll 4, Cass 4, Chariton 16, Cole 3, DeKalb 9, Dunklin 7, Grundy 10, Harrison 24, Henry 17, Lincoln 26, Miller 9, Monroe 16, Newton 15, Osage 15, Pemiscot 19, Perry 6, Pettis 5, Phelps 3, Pike 19, Platte 13, Ralls 21, Randolph 6, Ray 14, Saline 19, Ste. Genevieve 7, Stone 4, Texas 22, Vernon 5, and Washington 3.

Some men's ambition is art. Some men's ambition is fame. Some men's ambition is gold. My ambition is the souls of men.

Ann Landers

Smart Cookies Are Proud of Their Heritage

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a letter from a 15-year-old girl whose foreign-born parents refused to speak English.

My parents came to this country from Latvia. They spoke Latvian all the time. When I started school I couldn't speak one word of English. I attended Latvian church, joined a Latvian Girl Scout troup, took piano lessons from a Latvian teacher and pretty soon I got to hate everything Latvian because it was forced on me.

When I was 14 my folks sent me (screaming) to a Latvian camp in Michigan. There I met a Latvian boy who changed my thinking. He helped me understand that my parents were trying to preserve their culture, and that the only way to do it was through their children.

I met several kids who were proud to be Latvians. (I had always been ashamed.)

Now I know I want to marry a Latvian boy (I don't know who yet) and pass on this wonderful heritage to my children. --- PROUD NOW

Dear Proud: Some members of minority groups wish they could be something else. It takes a smart cookie to be proud of her heritage. I salute you.

Dear Ann Landers: Nice weather is here -- and with it the eternal affliction. Guests. I sometimes wish we didn't have such a comfortable and attractive summer home because uninvited friends and relatives think we are running a hotel. I am just now recuperating from my third batch of visitors and most of the summer is ahead.

I am going through the menopause but I manage to hold down a full - time job as well as keep the house going. All winter I look forward to casual outdoor living during the summer months. With company around it is a strain, not to mention the extra work.

Some people enjoy out-of-town guests. I am not writing for them. I am writing for myself and for others who want to be alone. If any of you reading this column wonder if you are a welcome guest, ask yourself one question: "Was I invited?" If you were, GO. If not, do somebody a favor and stay home. --- HOLIDAY OUT, NOT INN

Dear Holiday: Here's your letter and lotsa luck. The pests never think you mean THEM. For the repeaters, a "Sorry, not this year," should be the standard reply when they announce they're going to honor you with a visit.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you settle a family dispute? I have a very good friend who attends another school on the other side of town. We are both honor students and do not goof off. We like to talk on the phone during the week every night to relieve the monotony of studying. I say a 15 - or 20 - minute conversation is not excessive. My mother says five minutes is plenty for teen-agers to "yak about nothing."

Please take a stand on this. Your column is respected in our home. --- CLOCKED IN POUGHKEEPSIE

Dear Clocked: I feel that 15 minutes is not unreasonable for a teen-age phone chat --- provided, of course, Mom or Dad does not need the phone for a specific reason. Telephoning is a good outlet --- furthermore, kids who are at home are not out getting into trouble.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Only Delivered Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend

While Henry had plenty of assets, they didn't compare to the assets of his shapely girl friend Carolyn. While she carried her assets with her, however, Henry kept most of his in his library safe. One day Henry pointed to the safe and told Carolyn that he was giving her a gift of all the diamonds that the safe contained. Whereupon, she thanked Henry with a kiss on the cheek and they left the room. Henry, unfortunately, never returned, for shortly thereafter, he turned in his life subscription and died.

Immediately, Carolyn sought to obtain possession of the numerous diamonds in the library safe but the executor of Henry's estate refused to recognize her claim to them.

"But they're mine," she insisted. "Henry specifically gave them to me."

"Nonsense," retorted the executor. "They've never left the safe. Therefore, how could Henry have given them to you. While you may have prospected Henry, as far as I'm concerned, you've got no prospect of getting the diamonds."

Bouncing angrily out of the room, Carolyn took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you recognize Carolyn's claim to the diamonds?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there is no gift unless there is a delivery and an acceptance of the thing being given. In this case, there was no delivery.

SCOTT COUNTY
Ramblings
by
TOM B. STROUP
Director and Agricultural Agent

Many homemakers have asked for the best way to control cockroaches in the home.

MU Extension Entomologist Leroy Peters says properly applied insecticides will get them every time!

But first, all cupboards must be cleaned of food and utensils and shelves washed with soap and water.

Then spray lightly the walls and underneath sides of shelves, bottom sides of drawers, under the sink and lavatory, around baseboard and drainboards . . . and any other places that are hard to reach.

Don't spray any surface like bread-boards that will be direct contact with food.

The best insecticides are 2-percent chlordane or one-half percent dieldrin. If roaches seem to be resistant to these, try a one - half percent solution of diazinon . . . a solution of one - half percent dichlorvos plus one - half percent dieldrin . . . or a one - percent solution of ronnel known as Korlan.

How To Get Chiggers Out of The Yard

Many homeowners have asked how they can eliminate the menace of chiggers in their lawns. Applying chlordane, dieldrin, toxaphene or diazinon to the grass will work.

One gallon of mixed spray will cover about a thousand square feet of lawn surface. Follow directions on the container of insecticide for mixing.

Do not let small children or pets on the treated grass until after it has been sprinkled and is dry.

Chemical Weed Control In Soybeans

There are two general methods used in making chemical applications to control weeds in soybeans.

First, there are the preemergents. These chemicals are applied to the soil either before or immediately after planting the crop. There are only two chemicals included as post emergents -- one is applied shortly after the soybeans emerge and the other is applied as a pre-bloom treatment.

The recommended surface - applied preemergents include amiben, randox, sodium P.C.P. and "ramrod."

Under favorable conditions, amiben will control most broad-leaved and grass - type annual weeds. However, some cultivation may be necessary - depending upon rate of application and soil type and rainfall. Randox as a preemergent generally contols grass - type weeds more effectively than the broad - leaved group. Randox is especially effective in controlling giant foxtail.

Ramrod, closely related to randox but recommended a year ago for the first time, has the advantage of being considerably easier to handle. As of the present time, Ramrod has F.D.A. approval for soybeans harvested for seed purposes only.

Treflan, a relatively new herbicide, is recommended to be used on soybeans in 1967. To be effective, Treflan must be incorporated in the soil before the beans are planted. Treflan is quite effective in controlling grass - type weeds like giant foxtail, shattercane and johnson-grass seedlings. Treflan is less effective in controlling cocklebur, morning glory, velvet leaf, or prickly sida.

The second group is post - emergent herbicides -- 2, 4-d butyric is the only post - emergent recommended. It is applied during pre to mid - bloom and is effective only on such broad - leaved weeds as cocklebur and morning glory. Tenoran, a new herbicide, is considered in the experimental stage. It should be applied before weeds are more than 2 inches tall.

There are a number of new herbicides for soybeans. These include planavin, vernam, and dacthal as soil incorporated preemergents, lorox and alanap plus as surface applied preemergents.

Being relatively new these herbicides should be considered experimental and should be used on limited acreage until more information relative to their performance is available.

Time To Control Bagworms and Spider Mites On Evergreens

Bagwom feeding will become quite evident on evergreens in the weeks just ahead. Spider Mites are now present on evergreens. Both of these pests should be controlled now before damage becomes more severe during the hot, dry weather of July and August. If you use either carbaryl or toxaphene for bagworms, include either Aramite or dicofol (Kelthane) for mites. If diazinon or malathion are used for bagworms, these will control mites but a second application will be needed in 7 to 10 days.

How To Mix Chemical - Use carbaryl at rate of 2 lbs. of 50% per 100 gallons of water, or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use toxaphene at rate of 3 lbs. (2 quts. 60-65% toxaphene emul concentrate) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use diazinon at rate of 0.5 lbs. (1 lb. of 50% diazinon wettable powder) per 100 gallons of water or 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Use of water or 1 teaspoon 50% wettable powder or 25% emul. concentrate per gallon of water.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

How to measure a newspaper ad

Assume, for a moment, that it were possible to clip this display message from each copy of this newspaper printed for today's issue, and that these clippings were neatly stacked before you.

First, remove all clippings which appeared in copies spoiled in distribution, or which were otherwise, undelivered, left over, returned, or used in our office for file or checking copies. Since no one read these, they can go into the wastepaper.

Second, remove those messages which appeared in copies delivered to subscribers behind in their payments, service copies to advertisers and agencies, employes, any complimentary or promotion lists, and all others which do not qualify as paid circulation. Just for the record, you might want to count the number of these, but then they go into the wastepaper, too.

Now our stack is down to only the paying customers. Count the number of clippings in the stack. When that's done (and the exact figure recorded), separate the clippings into three separate stacks – one for those distributed to readers in your central market; one for those distributed to readers living outside this market, but who shop here regularly; and one for those copies delivered to readers living elsewhere. Count each stack and, when you have these figures accurately recorded, divide the clippings in separate stacks by method of delivery (carriers, dealers, vendors, mail, and so forth), and count each stack.

You look a little tired at this point – we'll help by counting the number of clippings appearing in copies sold with premiums, in combination with other publications, and at special rates. We'll also count the number sold in clubbing offers or as a result of a contest or with an insurance offer.

Rested now? Give us a hand and we will sort out the clippings in separate stacks for each city and town in which copies were distributed (just exactly where every copy of this message went – to the paying customers only). Then we count each stack for the record.

Now, while you relax and finish reading this message after counting and measuring our circulation in so many different ways, perhaps you would like to see what it costs each of the paying customers to buy a copy of this newspaper?

Then again, if all this talking about some of the ways the Audit Bureau of Circulations regularly counts and measures our circulation has you tired out, just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC Report.

ABC's stacks of figures aren't nearly as tiring and tell you a great deal more about the distribution of your advertising messages in this newspaper.

Giving to the U.S.O. is not an act of absolution.

It will not even up your debt to all the young Americans around the world who serve us in the cause of freedom.

It is not intended to ease the knowledge that some are serving and we are safe...that some are in peril and we have peace.

We ask that you give not simply because of what your gift might do for you, but because of what it will mean to them.

Because every U.S.O. club is an arm around a lonely shoulder, from all of us.

Because every U.S.O. show is a message from home that tells him personally: we care!

Give because there are some three and a half million young Americans, some soon to die, who need the friendship, the welcome, the services that U.S.O. —and only U.S.O.—provides.
